PRE-INVASION
AIR OFFENSIVE
ON NINTH DAYFORTRESS EUROPE
HIT BY NEARLY
6000 PLANES

BY AUSTIN BEALMEAR

London, Sunday, May 28 (P)—The great Allied pre-invasion aerial offensive, which sent nearly 6,000 bombers and fighters thundering against Hitler's transportation system yesterday, roared on past midnight with alerts sounding in Berlin and the English shores shaking from violent explosions along the French coast.

The Folkstone area, across the narrow Strait of Dover from France, got one of its greatest joltings of the war—houses shaking, furniture bouncing and doors banging again and again from the vibrations of the cross-channel explosions. Flares and bomb explosions flashed lit the channel sky.

Assaults Coordinated

The attack yesterday was one of the greatest coordinated blows ever struck from bases in England and Italy as wave after wave of bombers and fighters roared over the European continent.

At least twelve important railroad junctions, five airfields, two aircraft repair factories and several railroad bridges were among the targets blasted by well over 5,000 tons of exploding steel.

Some of the attackers encountered fighter opposition while others made their raids unmolested. The U. S. Air Force said in announcing that 24 bombers and seven fighters were missing. In addition eleven U. S. medium bombers were lost in other phases of the widespread assault.

Balkan Targets Blasted

At least 49 Nazi planes were shot down in the main attacks by the fleet flying from Britain, bomber gunners claiming 13 and escorting fighters getting 26.

Apparently the allied aircraft attacks were being carried on into the night. Air raid warnings were sounded in the Berlin area and the radio stations in other cities told of the penetration of enemy planes into the Reich.

A possibility that the Mediterranean air force was striking into the Balkans at night also was indicated as the Budapest radio left the air before midnight.

Soo Hospital Will House Overflow Of State Mental Cases

Washington, May 27 (P)—The Army's hospital at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., will be used temporarily for convalescent mental patients now housed in overcrowded state institutions, according to a tentative agreement between Governor Harry F. Kelly and the War Department, the Michigan governor said today.

Final approval of the arrangement to fulfill the state need until priorities can be obtained to build a new hospital is dependant upon review by War Department chiefs.

The hospital, originally built to serve troops guarding the locks of the Sault canal, has facilities for 400 patients.

During his two-day stay at the capital, the governor also conferred with Brig. General Frank T. Hines, veterans' administrator, on Michigan's program for returning servicemen, drawing praise from the Army officer for the arrangements being developed, Kelly stated.

Tonight Kelly planned to arrive in Hershey, Pa., to attend the governors' conference.

BIAK ISLAND
IN PHILIPPINE
AREA INVADEDBASES ARE SECURED
FOR NEW THRUSTS
IN PACIFIC

BY LEONARD MILLIMAN

Associated Press War Editor

American infantrymen fought their way ashore on Biak island in the Schouten group yesterday (Saturday) in another 200 mile leapfrog advance toward the western tip of New Guinea, established a firm beachhead and began driving toward three Japanese airdromes.

"For strategic purposes this marks the end of the New Guinea campaign," Gen. Douglas MacArthur said in announcing the action today (Sunday). "We have now secured bases of departure for an advance to the vital areas of the Philippines and the Netherlands East Indies."

Losses Not Heavy

American and Australian cruisers and destroyers engaged in an artillery duel with shore guns before infantrymen landed in the face of Japanese mortar and automatic weapon fire. Some of the Allied naval craft were damaged in the exchange between the big guns, but infantry losses were reported light.

From their beachhead a seven mile fight faced the landing forces before they could reach the nearest of Biak's three airdromes, the center of an enemy's aerial hornets nest.

The heavy naval and air bombardment which preceded the invasion cut American losses, but did not prevent the Japanese both against the landing and the from putting up a strong defense the start of the march inland.

From Biak's airdromes MacArthur's bombers would be within easy bombing range of the Philippines, 900 miles to the northwest.

"Results of the offensive launched in this theater eleven months ago," MacArthur said, "have more than fulfilled my most optimistic expectations."

STRIKE RATINGS
DETROIT BREADMerchants Limit Their Customers To One
Loaf Apiece

Detroit, May 27 (P)—The 3-day strike of 1,000 wholesale bakery drivers forced an informal rationing of bread in this metropolitan area today.

The strike, tying up wholesale deliveries except to schools, the armed forces, hospitals and other institutions where lack of bread might cause an emergency, had left bread racks bare in many retail stores.

Other merchants, with dwindling supplies, resorted to limiting customers to one loaf each.

The War Labor Board at Washington today ordered the striking drivers, members of the Bakery Drivers Local 51 of the AFL Teamsters Union, to return to their jobs immediately and warned no action could be taken on their wage adjustment request until they restore deliveries.

Samuel Hurst, president of the Bakery Drivers Local, said he and other AFL officials had been unable to persuade the strikers to end their walkout.

Telegrams were sent to Hurst and James H. Hoffa, international trustee of the Teamsters Union, urging them to take all necessary steps to terminate the city wide work stoppage by Monday so that the case, now before the 11th regional board, may be processed.

Shipping Hammered
By Russians; Baltic
Attack Predicted

London, May 27 (P)—Preliminary to a strategically timed offensive from the far north to the Black Sea, the Russians continue to hammer at German shipping in upper waters, tonight's Soviet communiqué announcing the sinking of four more enemy transports in the gulfs of Riga and Finland.

These actions signaling the first movement of German convoys in weeks—though their destinations remained obscure—coincided with a Berlin broadcaster's prediction that imminent Soviet drives would include a major attack in the Baltic.

Both the Russians and the Germans reported quiet along the long eastern front.

SIGNS GUIDE FIFTH ARMY—Pointing towards the north, the sign "Roma" guides Fifth army men, weapons and equipment moving through Fondi, which fell in the latest offensive, as troops drove six miles northeastward from captured Cietera and seized Cori, outpost of German defenses below Rome only nine miles from the via Casilina, last practical retreat route for 17 Nazi divisions threatened with encirclement. BROWN TANGLED
UP IN CAR DEALRation Board Refuses
To Let Him Buy
1942 Model

Detroit, May 27 (P)—Office of Price administration technicalities today tangled Prentiss M. Brown, former OPA administrator.

Brown, former Democratic United States senator from Michigan before he became big boss of OPA, now is chairman of the board of the Detroit Edison Co.

He applied for a certificate to purchase a 1942 model used automobile—a car the Edison company already is supplying him for use on company business.

The automobile panel of ration board 82-1, serving downtown Detroit, rejected the application, pointing out Brown's only showing of need for a car is as Edison board chairman, and the car already is available to him for such purposes.

Ernest W. Rapaport, panel member, said an Edison transportation committee member informed him that Brown wanted to buy the car to qualify for an "A" book, which cannot be issued for fleet cars, Caspar J. Lingeman, another panel member, said Brown's application was turned down so that the district OPA office could rule on the situation.

The question posed to the district office was whether Brown, whose right as a utility executive to purchase a car is unquestioned, might buy an automobile already at his disposal, in order to qualify for "A" gasoline for his personal driving in Detroit.

At his home in St. Ignace, Mich., where he has a personal car, Brown said today, "I certainly don't want to violate any OPA regulations and I don't want anything I am not entitled to."

PRAYERS ON D-DAY

Detroit, May 27 (P)—At the appointed hour on D-day employees in all plants of the Ford Motor Co. will halt their operations and join with the nation in a minute of silent prayer, the company announced today.

The name of Roderick Macdonald means nothing to you in America, but it meant much to many of us who marched with the wars in Tunisia, Sicily and Italy. For Mac was one of our bunch—a war correspondent—and he was killed the other day at Cassino.

Mac was a Scot. His family emigrated to Australia and he was schooled there and eventually went to work for the Sydney Morning Herald. He left Australia in 1941 and followed the wars in China, the Near East and all through Africa.

We first knew him in Tunisia. Just after Tunis fell he came down with a savage recurrence of macularia and spent three weeks in a hospital. Finally he got strong enough to get back to Algiers during that peaceful interval between Tunisia and Sicily.

During that time our public relations section was set up in a camp on the sandy and gentle shore of the Mediterranean, some 20 miles outside Algiers. That's where I used up those six weeks of peace—one of the grandest six weeks of my life, just loitering in my tent, eating well, working a little, reading a lot, mostly loafing and being wonderfully warm.

Roderick Macdonald sent word that he was in a hotel at Algiers, and I got a jeep and went and picked him up. He was so weak he couldn't even carry his bedroll. We brought him out to camp and put him in the tent next to mine.

For days he lay listlessly, with strength enough only to get up for meals. The sun was broiling and he would strip down to his shorts and lie there in the hot sand, basking his body a sleek brown. Gradually life began to

Hitler's Army Dares
Not Leave Westwall

BY JAMES M. LONG

London, May 27 (P)—In these last days before the June full moon Field Marshal Karl Von Rundstedt's army of the west has taken up its final defensive position—from which the Nazis admit they dare not budge even to avert disaster in Italy—to meet the shock of an approaching invasion in which the Germans are saying the whole course of the war will be decided this summer.

The Germans, with a nervous eye on the French channel coast and contending with the spectre of a heavy assault by Soviet Russia from the east, also have haunting fears that the Allies intend to break into fortress Europe through Scandinavia.

This is reflected in the worst wave of Nazi terror yet experienced in Norway and Denmark, according to reports from Stockholm. Thirty Norwegian patriots have been executed since May 1, and in Denmark 14 high Danish officials and military men are under arrest, charged with participating in a secret military organization, the reports said.

Ready to spring, the Allies today warned Europe's underground to keep off the roads when the invasion armies fight their way into the continent from the west, to take cover from bombardment, to maintain discipline and to follow the orders of their leaders implicitly. The warning was beamed to the continent from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's supreme headquarters.

VOTES PILE UP

Victors In Utah And Connecticut

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Connecticut and Utah Democrats joined the parade of fourth term supporters yesterday to elevate President Roosevelt's convention delegate strength to a record-breaking total of 996 as North Carolina party members chose nominees for senator, governor and other officials.

The Connecticut Democratic convention closed with the adoption of resolutions favoring a fourth term and with instructions to the state's delegation to cast its 18 votes for the president's re-nomination.

In Utah, the Democrats heard Senator Elbert D. Thomas, who is seeking renomination, call for the president's reelection to provide an experienced American at the peace table. Thomas predicted that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York would be the Republican nominee.

Party leaders said there was no doubt that Utah's 10 votes would be cast for the president's renomination, although the delegation usually goes uninstructed.

AIRMEN CROWD
TOWARD TOKYOTwo Islands In Kurile
Chain Bombarded By
U. S. Warplanes

U. S. Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, May 27 (P)—Hitting again along the north road leading toward Tokyo, American airmen blasted two islands in Japan's Kurile chain, a U. S. Pacific fleet headquarters press announcement disclosed today.

A single 11th AAF Liberator staged a pre-dawn raid on Matsushima Island, just a little more than 1,000 miles from Japan's capital and about 500 miles from the Nippon mainland. The big bomber struck the island last Thursday, it encountered no opposition.

Before dawn the same day a fleet air wing four Ventura search plane hit Shumushu Island, northernmost of the Kuriles. It was unopposed. Shumushu has been bombed eight times this month.

The announcement gave no details.

In the Central Pacific American army bombers again visited Ponape Island, on the eastern fringe of the Carolines. They unloaded explosives on docks, warehouses and gun positions. Anti-aircraft fire was meager.

Army, Navy and Marine planes teamed up to blast Japanese positions in the Marshalls. They bombed and strafed runways, barracks and anti-aircraft batteries. Japanese fire was moderate.

Another pilot rescue was chalked up to the credit of American forces during the Marshall attacks. The pilot of a Marine Corsair fighter plane, forced to make a water landing near Wotje atoll, was saved.

McKay petitions also were filed at the last minute in Muskegon county, where the anti-McKay group had filed its slate several days ago.

Kelly Calls
Special Term
For June 19

Washington, May 27 (P)—Governor Harry F. Kelly of Michigan, after conferences with the state's congressional delegation and the war ballot commission, tonight called a special session of the Michigan legislature at Lansing, Monday, June 19, to consider authorizing use of a federal ballot for servicemen in the November election.

The federal ballot—a uniform, abbreviated ballot for congress, president and vice-president—was provided by congress to be delivered to fighting men at every outpost, to be used in the event the detailed, bulkier state ballot fails to arrive or cannot be used.

Mailing Biggest Problem

"The great mass of Michigan servicemen will be able to use the state ballot," the governor said in making his announcement as he left for the governors' conference at Hershey, Pa. "But as an added insurance that all of our boys, no matter where they are stationed, get an opportunity to vote, we feel the federal ballot should be authorized."

"Voting of soldiers and sailors in time of war is necessarily subject to military and naval operations," he commented. "Because of the vast theater of war—and type of operation—I am of the opinion that even though everything is done to transport the state ballot, there will be some who will not receive it and should be given the right to vote the supplemental federal ballot, as a final insurance."

"I held a meeting last night with all the congressional delegation from Michigan. They agree heartily with my conclusion that a special session of our legislature should be called to authorize in the general November election the use of the official federal war ballot above referred to."

"I am therefore calling a special session of our legislature to convene at Lansing on Monday, June 19, to consider such legislation."

Session To Be Brief

The governor said the session would last "not more than three hours." He made his announcement after consulting representatives of the war ballot commission, which has the responsibility for getting the ballots to soldiers, sailors and merchant marine. The commission comprises the secretaries of war and navy and chairman of the maritime commission.

"I'm convinced that everything possible will be done to get these state ballots to the troops," Kelly said. The Michigan legislature, before adjourning in March, had set up the machinery for absentee voting by servicemen with the state ballot, the governor said.

"There is an unanimity of opinion that the state ballot affording right to vote for federal, state and county offices (the same opportunity which they would have to vote if home) is infinitely preferable to the supplemental federal ballot which is confined to presidential and congressional offices."

"It is my hope and belief that the great majority of Michigan men and women serving in or attached to the armed forces will have the privilege to apply and receive the state ballot and have it returned so it can be counted on election day."

Merchant Vessel
Captain Slain In
Tiff Aboard Ship

Washington, May 27 (P)—The Navy reported today that Karl J. Larsen, captain of the S. S. Thomas J. Walsh, was shot to death April 19 in an exchange of shots with members of the naval gun crew aboard his merchant vessel.

The shooting occurred in a South Pacific port under naval jurisdiction where the Navy said it had become necessary to confine Larsen to his quarters aboard ship. Larsen lived at 435 West 23rd Street, New York City.

The Navy said that the merchant vessel has returned to a West coast port and that a thorough investigation of the shooting is being made.

Lines Form Again
For McKay Battle

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Battle lines were forming Saturday again in Michigan's fight over the retention of Republican National Committeeman Frank D. McKay in his influential position in party affairs.

Followers in Grand Rapids of the veteran GOP leader, who faces custer attempts, filed petitions for a full slate of candidates to the Kent county convention July 20. McKay's adversaries filed a virtually complete list at the same time.

McKay petitions also were filed at the last minute in Muskegon county, where the anti-McKay group had filed its slate several days ago.

NAZI RETREAT
ROUTE UNDER
BIG GUN FIREOTHER U. S. FORCES
ONLY 18 MILES
FROM ROME

BY EDWARD KENNEDY

Allied Headquarters, Naples, May 27 (P)—American armored forces fought their way into the town of Ardena, only 2½ miles from the strategic Casilina highway, and tonight began pouring a heavy shellfire into this main escape route for eight German divisions comprising the bulk of the Nazi forces below Rome.

While American tanks and field guns kept the enemy retreat line under fire, other American Fifth army forces in their closest drive toward Rome threatened the town of Velletri, 18 miles from the outskirts of the capital. Velletri already was shrouded in smoke from blazing fires.

Enemy Alarmed

The Germans, apparently alarmed over the plight of their large forces to the southeast, threw reserves into the fight to keep the Americans from blocking the all-important via Casilina—highway six—Associated Press Correspondent Daniel De Luce wrote from the front tonight.

In the town of Ardena American doughboys were waging a house-to-house battle with the Germans, De Luce reported. Ardena, itself an important road junction behind the retreating Nazi Tenth army, was reached after a spectacular drive of nine miles in one day.

The Allied armies advanced steadily along the entire 80-mile active front today.

American Fifth army forces forging a ring around the Pontine marshes stormed through the mountain town of Sezze, which has a population of 20,000 and is the largest town yet taken in the Allied offensive, developing a second threat to the main German forces.

Flank Endangered

Capture of Sezze brought the Americans squarely up against a new defense line which two German divisions have tried to establish in the Lepini hills northeast of the marshes to protect the flank of the German troops in the Liri valley and their principal route of retreat along the via Casilina toward Rome.

The main bodies of the two Fifth army forces, whose patrols joined earlier in the week, now were less than ten miles apart.

The Germans, apparently growing desperate about the plight of their forces at the center of the front near the junction of the American Fifth and British Eighth army sectors, began withdrawing them as best they could, meanwhile throwing powerful reinforcements into action to bolster the principal points protecting the escape route.

The cutting of the via Casilina—highway six—would seriously

Amber Light Takes Money At Detroit; Black Badge Out

Detroit, May 27 (AP)—Black Badge, the undefeated winner of six successive stake races at the Detroit track, finished out of the money today as Charles T. Fisher's Amber Light dashed to half a length victory in the $10,000 Cadillac handicap before 14,063 fans.
Amber Light, the 5-2 second choice, ran the six furlongs over a heavy track in 1:12 to capture the $6,500 first money. Jockey Porter Roberts, newly signed by the Dixiana stable, was the winning rider.
Amber Light staved off a late challenge to beat out Ed McCann's Wise Miss, with Earl Graham's Night Crawler third. Then came Art Hirschberg's well played favorite, Black Badge, which finished fifth and a half lengths off the pace. Amber Light paid $7.20 straight.
It was Amber Light's fourth victory in eight starts this year.
A disqualification marked the running of the $2,000 fillies purse as the stewards ruled out W. H. Bishop's Faff, which finished first, and placed the horse last. First place went to Frank Forester's Regal Maid. The stewards charged that Jockey Milt Terry, aboard Faff, struck Regal Maid over the head with his whip.
It was the first disqualification of a winner at Detroit in several years.

NAZI RETREAT ROUTE UNDER BIG GUN FIRE

impair the German efforts to make an orderly withdrawal of the large forces still fighting in the Liri valley.
Roads Easily Jammed
Field Marshal Albert Kesselring probably would be able to extricate a substantial part of those forces along other escape routes to the north, but these relatively small roads would be easily clogged and the Germans probably would be compelled to leave behind the bulk of their guns and other heavy equipment.
Of the 17 enemy divisions reinforced with regiments or smaller units from other divisions which the Germans have committed to action south of Rome, eight are in the line where their escape would be complicated by the cutting of the via Cassilina.
These are the 715th Infantry and 29th panzer grenadiers, holding the line from the Cori area southeast through the Lepini hills; the 24th panzer and 15th panzer grenadiers, who principally are facing the French to protect the southern edges of the Liri valley; the 334th Infantry, the 305th Infantry and the 90th panzer grenadiers, who are striving to hold the Eighth army thrusts up highway six against Ceprano and Arce; and finally, what little is left of the first parachute division, whose tattered remnants are being pursued in the hills north of the Liri valley.
Airmen Take Toll
Most of these divisions have an alternative escape route in main highway No. 82 from Arce north to Avezzano. Other alternative routes of retreat, are surfaced secondary roads leading northward from Frosinone and Ferentino to Avezzano. A number of unsurfaced country roads in the same direction.
Attempts to flee along these routes undoubtedly would compel the Nazis to sacrifice thousands of men in rear-guard delaying actions and to abandon huge quantities of badly-needed equipment and stores.
The nine other German divisions committed below Rome are in a line from the west coast south of Rome to Valmontone and on dormant sectors of the Apennines and the Adriatic front from which retreat would not be immediately affected by cutting of the via Cassilina.
Aside from materials the Germans were abandoning as they pulled out before the advancing Allies, the Allied tactical air forces were taking a terrific toll—both in men and machines—along the retreat highways. Figures for yesterday released today, ran a three-day score of vehicles destroyed or damaged by strafing and bombing to past the 2,650 mark.
In addition to the capture of Sezze and the thrust toward Valmontone and the via Cassilina, these other specific gains all along the front were announced by Allied headquarters today:
1. The Eighth army, driving up the Liri valley above Cassino to within two miles of the important road junction of Arce, captured the towns of Castrolibero and Roccasecca after a fierce tank battle west of the Melfa river in which 12 enemy tanks were knocked out.
2. Canadians and British on the next sector westward reached a point two miles from Ceprano, a second important highway junction astride the via Cassilina four miles southwest of Arce.
3. Arce and Ceprano control communications at the head of the Liri valley, where the via Cassilina begins a long, straight stretch through the wide valley to Rome.
4. A few miles to the south-west, near the junction of the Fifth and Eighth army fronts, the Allies captured Pastena and Mt. Rotondo, within 12 miles of the large town of Frosinone.
5. Fifth army forces driving to a point 12 miles from the old beachhead lines captured Monte Arcestone and cut the Velletri-Giulianello road. This advance was between Cori, captured yesterday, and Velletri.

Queen Of Fillies Cops Seven Races
BY ORLO ROBERTSON
New York, May 27 (AP)—It was the same old story at Belmont Park today as Twilight Tear ran her string of victories to seven straight and once again proved that she is the queen of the three-year old fillies.

SPARTANS WILL REVIVE SPORTS

Program Goes Back On Pre-War Basis For July 1, 1945
East Lansing, May 25. (AP)—The Michigan State college athletic council has authorized the resumption of all sports on a pre-war basis starting July 1, 1945. Athletic Director Ralph H. Young announced today.
Last month the college allowed sports to be resumed July 1, this year, with teams using only civilian personnel. Head Football Coach Charley Bachman already has started spring practice, in preparation for next fall's season.
Young, declaring he was "jubilation" at the decision, said, "This means we can go out and schedule games now with many of our former opponents, giving us a year's head start on lining up teams for 1945 and 1946." The University of Michigan and several other former opponents can not be included in this year's schedule because servicemen play on their teams.
Bachman has a squad of only 20 players out for spring practice, augmented by four or five who steal time from the baseball field, but he expects to start the season with a squad of "95 or 40 good boys," and expects additional talent after the start of summer and fall sessions. Most of them are boys too young for the army or in 4-F, but among them are "some pretty good prospects."
One of these is Jack Breslin, 185-pound fullback from Battle Creek whom Bachman describes as "good a punter as we've had around here." He said Breslin is a very smart and tough fullback whose kicking "compares with the punting of Al Akkert, Curt Warmbein and Johnny Pingel." Breslin is the most experienced man on the spring squad.
So far only two opponents are booked in what Young and Bachman hope will be a six or seven game 1944 schedule. They are the University of Maryland, to be played at East Lansing November 11, and the University of Missouri, November 4 at Columbia, Mo.

Japanese war lords have launched a new offensive in central China.
The new series of attacks was reported yesterday (Saturday) by Chungking. Fighting broke out in three sectors of southern Hupeh province below Tsungyang, lying between two railroads extending south from Hanjow Both are coveted by the Japanese as interior supply lines to relieve their dwindling cargo fleets.
It's possible this is the beginning of a major offensive to sweep down the rail lines to the Japanese-held port of Canton. Chinese have predicted such a campaign would be the sequel to the recent Nipponese conquest of the trackless railways north of Hankow in Honan province. Chinese troops have recaptured part of the northern line.
Chungking reported its counter-offensive was again gaining ground, particularly in western Honan where the Nipponese have made their deepest penetration.

Over the joy mountain passes of southern China and the steam-jungles of northern Burma Allied troops cut a few more miles off the Japanese-held area flanking the Burma road.
Chinese forces pushed through a sleet storm in pursuit of enemy units that escaped their trap at the Tatangzu mountain outpost.
Twelve miles to the south they beat back counterattacking Japanese reinforcements.
The American-trained Chinese 38th division captured Warong in north Burma's Mogaung valley from the Nipponese conquerors of Singapore. A supply dump was seized and heavy casualties inflicted on the Japanese. Other American-led troops advanced a mile and a half up the Irrawaddy. These Allied forces are converging from the west and south on encircled Myitkyna, key Japanese base already partly in American hands.
Trapped between monsoon weather and Allied forces, the crack Japanese 33rd division was reported virtually annihilated in the mud and dripping jungles of eastern India. A series of small Allied gains and defeated enemy counterattacks were reported throughout the Imphal-Kohima area.
American bombers ranged over the Pacific from Hong Kong to Ponape in the Carolines and the central Pacific Marshalls. Tokyo radio reported two Allied destroyers had moved in close to

Library Adventures

The Lewis-DeVoto Controversy
In spite of global war and death and tragedy, literary controversy goes on without end or armistice. Some writer is always digging his fangs into another; their friends take sides violently; all of them together give the impression that what they are doing is of world-shaking importance. And all the time average sensible people, the millions who do the real work of the world, remain completely oblivious of their very existence.
A case in point in the current Sinclair Lewis-Denard DeVoto controversy. A relatively small section of the American people is giving a passionate, absorbed attention to those two doughty knights of the pen while they are belaboring each other. Most of those the preamble to the constitution describes as "we the people of the United States"—have only a confused conception of what they are talking about.
And that is not necessarily to be set down to the discredit of the average American. He has more important things to think about, and Sinclair Lewis and Denard DeVoto are unquestionably taking themselves far too seriously in their bid for public attention in the midst of a global war. They are only bubbles on a Mississippi River; the way they talk you would get the impression that they are the river itself.
Especially DeVoto. He began the present fracas with a series of lectures he delivered at the University of Indiana. Later he collected them in book form and published them under the title, "The Literary Fallacy." His thesis is that the American writers of the twenties—such people as Sinclair Lewis, Van Wyck Brooks, John Dos Passos, Ernest Hemingway—misunderstood America and wholly misrepresented it.
He goes far beyond that, however. For instance, he tells of the time when DeVoto—this was during the twenties—was making almost pathetic attempts to win Lewis's favor and attention. Lewis at that time was the most popular novelist in America, while DeVoto was the author of a book or two that had failed and he was struggling to win attention. The one time he succeeded in getting near Lewis, according to Lewis, was on a train. "I was rather interested in his frog face," Lewis remarks with seeming casualness but with an animus that more than takes DeVoto at his word that critics should be blunt.
As usual in such things, the controversy will settle nothing. Denard DeVoto is an exhibitionist who loves to hear himself talk. Average sensible people have always known that. Sinclair Lewis is a novelist who did good things at one time but who hasn't anything important left to say, as was proved by his latest novel, "Gideon Planish." When these two belabor each other, what they say is more dramatic than important.

LARD IS OFF RATION LIST

Present Supply Deemed Adequate For All Civilian Needs

Because the present supply is deemed adequate to meet all civilian needs, the Office of Price Administration has removed all rationing restrictions from lard.

The action becomes effective May 25, 1944.

Lard has had a zero point value since Friday, March 3, 1944, when an increase in the allocation of the commodity for civilian use made possible the ending of its ration price of three red points per pound. But, though point free, the item still remained technically under rationing.

As a result of today's action, all restrictions on the amount of lard that may be acquired by industrial or institutional users are removed, and all record keeping and reporting requirements under OPA rationing regulations are eliminated.

In addition to eliminating the detail of keeping records and reports previously required by OPA, the action is expected to facilitate the stockpiling of lard by large industrial and institutional users, such as bakeries, processed food concerns, restaurants and hotels, and industrial concerns such as soap, margarine manufacturers.

Previously, industrial and institutional users were not permitted to stockpile more than 30 days' supply of lard, and the removal of all rationing restrictions from lard ends this limitation.

Stockpiling of lard by industrial users, it was pointed out, will free manufacturers' and wholesalers' cold storage space for lard currently being rendered and for accommodating other products, such as meats, requiring cold storage.

Old Orchard Farm

Potato Planting Hindered by Recent Rains

Delayed beyond the usual planting date by the fact that soil in several spots in the field were just too wet to permit the preparation of a proper seed bed, Old Orchard farm, at Flat Rock, is finally getting its potato crop of 1944 in the ground.

Plowing in the field was started on Monday but the tractor had to skip the low spots and the team was used to turn over the ground where it was unsafe for the tractor to venture. The soil in these spots came up in heavy lumps, that had to be broken down before the seed could be planted, so most of the week was consumed in trying to prepare a good seed bed in all parts of the plot.

The manager of the Daily Press experimental farm believes that preparation of a seed bed for potatoes can best be done with a team, because the tractor, pulling equipment over the field packs damp soil under the wheels and hinders deep planting. A lot of time was lost in carrying out this theory and, at last, the tractor had to be finally used to pull a disk, to cut up the clods wherever they remained in the field. In addition one of the extra workers in the farm crew was laid up for a day and a half, so the week's program was also held back by that fact.

The planter finally got in the field at noon yesterday and if the weather man will pull the right lever for just a couple of days, the final planting job of the season at Old Orchard will be finished.

Sheep Shearer Arrives—To complicate matters further, the sheep shearer from Ewer, whose arrival has been awaited for several weeks, reached the farm on Saturday morning and an extra man had to be found to serve as his helper, while the wool coats were being taken off the backs of the farm flock. And even that process was complicated by the fact that the shearer, this year, has been unable to get tires for his truck and is forced to use the shearing equipment provided by the flock owners. Old Orchard has had an electric shearer for several years and last year, knowing that parts would be scarce, the manager purchased six sets of cutting blades and combs, to meet future needs. The manager thought he had six sets of new blades in reserve, but last summer he loaned the equipment to several neighbors and when the box was opened on Saturday morning, after the shearer arrived it was found that all the blades had been used and were too dull for use. The shearer finally fashioned makeshift equipment, by using some of his own parts, to get the wool off the flock but it isn't the sort of a job that this expert usually turns out.

Now that the breeding ewes and the ram have been made fairly comfortable for this unseasonable hot weather period, all of them will have to be made uncomfortable again, by being forced to take their semi-annual dose of worm medicine. The ewes and the ram will get a full sized worm pill while each lamb will take a half pill of this important medicine. After the flock is safely recovered from this ordeal, they will be turned on permanent pasture for the summer.

More Little Pigs—Seven more little pigs were added to Old Orchard's future pork drove last week, making a total of 44 pigs in the spring litters. The early arrivals are already being weaned and this process will be continued until all the mothers have been relieved of the duty of nursing their youngsters. When all of the pigs are weaned the sows will be placed on pasture with the fall pig drove in the Roberts field, while excellent clover pasture, on the home farm, awaits the 44 youngsters when they have reached the stage of development for release from the hog lot. In the fall pig drove there are four young sows that will be due to farrow their litters in about another month, so that if everything goes well, Old Orchard will have a lot of hogs to market this fall and winter. Right now the prospect on pork prices for fall is anything but bright, but Old Orchard's manager has been doing what his government urged him to do—to provide all the meat animals it is possible to produce, to meet the war emergency. How he will fare financially on this venture remains to be determined.

Ring and Sharp, the farm dogs, seem to know it's about time for the coming of their summer playmates—the Harrison girls. They dash out to meet every car that enters the barnyard and eagerly sniff for the scent of their friends since puppyhood. So far this season their quest has been in vain, but along about the middle of June their hearts will be made glad, for that will be about the time of the arrival of the subjects of their devotion.

A Proclamation

Another year has passed on since Memorial day was observed in the city and fitting tribute was paid in memory of soldiers, sailors, marines and other members of the armed forces who have given and are now giving their services to our country in this time of peril and national need, and particularly of the many who have paid the supreme sacrifice.

It is fitting and proper, more so this year than ever before, to give proper expression to our gratitude for their services and to acknowledge our debt therefor, and also to pay tribute to our living veterans, of former wars, and to pay tribute to those who have already in this World War 2, given their lives in service to our country.

Therefore, I, the undersigned do hereby request the citizens of Escanaba to cease industrial activities, and to close all places of business on Tuesday, May 30th, and that we all join together in paying solemn tribute to the dead and living defenders of the nation.

Dated this 27th day of May, 1944.

Lions To Hear W. D. Cochran Monday Evening

W. D. Cochran, Iron Mountain, a member of the Committee for Economic Development will be the speaker at the regular meeting of the Escanaba Lions club at the Sherman hotel, at 8:45 p. m. Monday. The program of the evening will be in charge of Grover Lewis, chairman of the Lions' Post-War Planning committee.

Mr. Cochran will talk on "Post-War Planning". The talk will be of unquestioned timeliness as most public and many private bodies are now setting up committees to lay plans for the post-war era.

Following the program the Lions will hold their annual election of officers.

A Serious Strike

WILDCAT walkouts by woodsmen and mill workers in the billion-dollar Pacific Northwest lumbering industry present a serious situation at this time when lumber is the No. 1 critical war material. The Pacific Northwest is the greatest producer of forest products in the United States. Despite the pleading by both CIO and AFL leaders to stay on the job, more than 25,000 workers have gone out on the unauthorized strike, forcing about seventy-five mills to close.

These were plants producing plywood for military aircraft, torpedo boats and gliders; sawmills turning out lumber for boxes, crating and other materials for shipping war materials overseas to the fighting fronts; other factories manufacturing desperately needed forest products.

Strikes in the lumbering industry have more serious consequences at this time than the stoppage of work in steel and munition plants, for the simple reason that the products of the forests are the paramount need for the winning of the battle of production on the home front.

The Pacific coast workers did an injustice to the war effort and to the cause of unionism itself by joining the unauthorized strike in defiance of the orders of their union leaders.

Back to the Land?

THE Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, real estate agents and lumbering companies report there has been an increased demand for agricultural and recreational lands in recent months.

War workers, particularly those with farming backgrounds, are using some of their savings to buy pieces of land to which they may return after the production boom is over. Most of the interest is being shown, however, in lake and river frontage lots and outcrop land as sites for hunting and fishing cabins.

The back-to-the-land movement has been noted in other parts of the United States, and the Department of Agriculture is beginning to worry about the possibility of a scramble for farms after the war is over.

According to the Wall Street Journal, it is the somber view of agriculture officials that the farm economy will not be able to welcome back even those who have left the land since the war broke out.

Of the 4½ million persons who left farms during the last 2½ years probably not more than one-third could find full-time work on farms after the war as laborers, tenants or owners, even if food production continued at current wartime peaks, a recent study reveals. Yet officials think that 5 million war workers alone may seriously attempt to till the soil for their livelihood after the armistice.

The Department of Agriculture, incidentally, is seriously planning an energetic publicity program to discourage the peacetime migration to the land. This may be a necessary move, but it is doubtful whether it will deter chambers of commerce and regional development bureaus from continuing with their agricultural promotion plans.

In the Upper Peninsula, for instance, the dairy industry has never been far enough developed to take care of the needs of this region alone. Delta and other counties have been making great strides in recent years in the expansion of its potato industry, aided by ideal climatic and soil conditions. Agriculture is highly competitive and individualistic, and it is doubtful whether returning soldiers and war workers, with experience in farming, will be discouraged by governmental warnings from going back to the land for postwar economic security if they have a mind to do so.

It's Worth Trying

WORD comes that those who are afflicted with the dire respiratory trouble known as hay fever, and who reside in states where summers are hot and dusty, may be able to get relief this year. They probably can, on their doctor's certification, get the necessary gas for a summer trip to the Land of Hiawatha, where they are sure to find relief.

The air here, dustless, water-washed and pollen-free, is the best alleviator for hay fever in all the world. Lake Superior, Lake Michigan and Lake Huron are the primary reasons for this. From almost whatever direction the breezes come, they lose their dust and noxious weed seeds over vast expanses of cool northern waters.

We ought to make the most of this concession in the present lean times for tourist travel. Chambers of Commerce and the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau should play up strongly the genuine relief which this district affords, and induce more hay fever sufferers to spend the late summer and early fall with us.

In fact, they can escape the July heats in their home areas by coming early, before the pollen starts to blow, and thus ward off any attack whatever of this painful malady. We need more hay fever business and we are ideally located to serve it well.

Blood and Eye Banks

TO THE "blood banks" which play so important a part in this war, and are used wherever there is serious loss of blood by accidents, there may now be added "eye banks."

One is said to have been established in a New York hospital. It isn't exactly a matter of keeping whole human eyes in storage for use as required, but preserving human corneas or front windows of the eyeballs. Corneas can be collected from living donors or removed immediately after death. Obviously, this may be done in a large extent on battlefields or in military hospitals.

It is remarkable how much progress is being made along this and other lines which are able to supply injured human bodies with living material from other bodies. Physical "spare parts" may be rather familiar before this war is over.

Consult Your Conscience

DR. EDWIN G. ZABRISKIE of New York, speaking before the American Neurological Association, said the American soldier "has learned while on campaign to conserve energy, food, and materials. At home he sees an appalling amount of extravagance . . . all around him a complacent optimism about termination of the war."

Well, that's what he sees, all right, and as Dr. Zabriskie points out, it makes him angry. All of us at one time or another have brushed aside the inconvenience of "using it up, wearing it out, eating it all" with the impatient reasoning that "other people do it."

But that doesn't make it right. Next time YOU feel that way, consult your conscience, not your convenience.

Slap at Patton

TEMPORARILY at least, the senate military affairs committee has held up the approval of a permanent rank promotion for Lt. Gen. George S. Patton Jr. The delay is interpreted as a slap back at the high ranking army officer, who received much notoriety for his unfortunate slapping of a soldier in a Sicilian hospital.

There is another angle to the Patton case, however. The furor over the slapping incident had all but subsided when the fiery and colorful general brought another reprimand upon himself by an ill-advised forecast about European postwar power politics.

General Patton is still a good military tactician, however, and his services should prove valuable in the coming invasion of Europe. The senate military affairs committee is probably just reminding him that he should better guard his temper and his tongue.

DEFERRED TEACHERS (Detroit Free Press)

Reassurance of draft deferment for Michigan male teachers in the 30-30.8 age group is a promise of stability, for at least the time being, for a sorely decimated profession. What with Selective Service, enlistments and vacancies caused by departures to war plant jobs, a serious teacher shortage has resulted.

Brig. Gen. Leroy Pearson's statement that men teachers in the oldest draft-age category will "remain in civilian life for an indefinite period," is, of course, subject to change, as are most wartime pronouncements. But the special word is still very welcome. Hazards placed in the way of the education of children are more than likely to produce grave consequences later on.

On The Record

BY DOROTHY THOMPSON

Many will have read with interest Forrest Davis's reports in the Saturday Evening Post, on what happened in Teheran. The propriety of making official revelations through privileged articles is dubious. The administration has done it time and again — in the Darlan affair, as revealed by Demaree Bess; in our government's plan for a defeated Germany (and Italy) as revealed by Kingsbury Smith; in the white paper on the prelude to the war as revealed by Joseph Alsop and Robert Kintner.

It is a way of making official revelations without official responsibility for accuracy. It privileges certain journalists at the expense of others. And it permits a coloration of the facts.

—IMPORTANT REVELATIONS—

Having said this, we must nevertheless study Mr. Davis's account of what happened at Teheran, as a most important document. It reveals some encouraging things about our foreign policy—and others not so encouraging. The agreement between the United States, Britain and Russia rests on a realistic recognition of the disaster that would follow a disruption of relations in the peace to come.

Those who think of President Roosevelt as a crusader and general do-gooder to the world will get small support for their theory from Mr. Davis's expose of what his foreign policy really is. Mr. Roosevelt is thinking in terms of power, and he has no intention of liquidating any power position that the United States can maintain.

In this he realistically accepts that the power of the United States cannot widen unless two partners can increase theirs. The chief problem is how each of the three can increase its own power without getting into trouble with the others. Britain and America, for instance, are prudently concerned with limiting Russian power in Europe. On the other hand, the United States at least, is willing to see the Soviets have an access to the Atlantic, and the President suggested the creation of a "free state" of Kiel under "United Nations" authority, internationalizing the German Kiel Canal connecting the Baltic and North Seas which is capable of carrying capital ships.

For this he won an enthusiastic handshake from Stalin—but not from Churchill.

—LEAGUE MANDATE THEORY—

In order to keep within the limits of the Atlantic charter Mr. Roosevelt goes back to the League of Nations mandate theory but wants to see it exercised as a "trusteeship" to prevent the mandatory powers from considering themselves outright owners of ports, harbors, colonies and strategic islands. Apparently the former practice of the powers to regard mandates as their own territory is to be restricted by flying a United Nations flag along with their own. I confess to skepticism regarding the effectiveness of this.

The real situation seems to be: The President wants an extension of American power in the South Pacific and to the western shores of Africa, in what is now French territory—possibly in Dakar. No rich territories but control over large oceanic territories and air bases for considerations of security will thus be won.

Obviously the Russians are here disinterested. The real trouble might arise with the British. But it is already apparent that they will be compensated for a relative weakening of their position in Asiatic water by gains in Africa at the expense of Italy, and by a solidification of their position in the Near East.

Russia wants a restoration, with a few accommodations, of her empire of 1914.

This is power politics on a great scale. One should not fear words: All politics involve power. But this arrangement, though it might settle the affairs of the big three would not settle the affairs of the globe. It is significant that Mr. Davis reports that no conclusions were reached regarding the future of Germany, and that the President threw his weight against any explicit agreements, preferring to await developments there. Yet the future of Germany is of primary concern to both Britain and Russia.

Indeed, the whole of Europe is left a blank, except for the apparent intention of the President to acquire American bases on French African soil—which may throw the clearest light yet on his strained relations with General de Gaulle.

Yet the future of Europe is the burning question and will determine whether or not there is permanent peace. The Teheran picture seems to assume that with the defeat of Germany, Europe as a whole will be reduced to insignificance.

If any European country is to play a world affairs, it will do so only as a satellite of one or the other big power. All other alternatives are apparently excluded.

Mr. Davis's article implicitly backs up the speech of Marshal Smuts inviting the small western Atlantic countries to join the British Commonwealth—and published immediately after the conference of Teheran—and it fits in with the obvious moves of the Soviet Union to create spheres of influence in eastern Europe.

But if politics is foresight, it is necessary to consider the probable results of such a policy.

FLAG ETIQUETTE—W I T H Memorial Day just around the corner, and national Flag Day coming up June 14, it is important for all of us to know flag etiquette—how to display and show respect to the flag of the United States, living symbol of our republic.

The Bugler's attention to the need for such information was pointed out by an officer of the Cleveland Post, A m e r i c a n Legion, w h o found himself in a somewhat embarrassing position recently. He was asked by a friend how and when the flag should be displayed, and wanting to be right, started looking for official information on the subject. He found the Legion had no information at hand on the subject—and had to refer his questioner to the Boy Scouts!

Convinced that such a condition should not continue, and that the public should be informed on flag etiquette, the Bugler therefore asked Commander Roy Baldwin of the Legion to supply him with official flag etiquette rules. Commander Baldwin is, therefore, given credit for the following information, which comes from a Legion booklet "Let's Be Right on Flag Etiquette."

SUNRISE TO SUNSET—The flag should be displayed only from sunrise to sunset, or between such hours as may be designated by proper authority. It may be displayed at night on special occasions when it is desired to produce a patriotic effect.

The flag should be hoisted briskly and lowered slowly and ceremoniously.

It should be displayed on all national and state holidays and on historic and special occasions. As the emblem of our country, however, it may be displayed from a flagpole every day throughout the year, weather permitting.

The flag should be displayed daily, weather permitting, on or near the main administrative building of every public institution. The flag should be displayed at or near every public polling place on election days, and during school days, in or near every schoolhouse.

IN PROCESSIONS—When carried in a procession with another flag, or flags, our flag should be carried either on the marching right of the column, or front of the center of the line.

When displayed on crossed staffs with another flag, from a wall, the staff of our flag should be over the other, and the flag itself should be on the right side.

When a number of flags of states, cities, pennants of societies, etc., are displayed together, our flag should be at the center and at the highest point of the group. When they are flown from the same staff, our flag should be hoisted first and lowered last. Only exception is during church services aboard navy ships at sea, when the church pennant may be placed above the flag.

When flags of our own and other nations are displayed, they should be flags of approximately equal size and flown from staffs of the same height.

WHEN OFF STAFF—When the flag is displayed otherwise than by being flown from a staff, it should be displayed flat, whether indoors or out, or so suspended that its folds fall free as if it were staffed.

When displayed either horizontally or vertically against a wall, the union should be uppermost and to the flag's own right—that is, to the observer's left.

MEMORIAL DAY—On Memorial Day, May 30, the flag is displayed at half-staff from sunrise until noon, and at full staff from noon until sunset. In hoisting to half-staff, the flag should be

THE OLD FLAGS—When the flag is no longer in fitting condition for display, it should not be cast aside or used in any way that might be viewed as disrespectful. It should be destroyed as a whole privately, preferably by burning.

SALUTE TO THE FLAG—During the ceremony of hoisting or lowering the flag, or when the flag is passing in a parade or review, all persons present should face the flag, stand at attention and salute. Those present in uniform should render the military salute.

When not in uniform, men should remove the hat with the right hand, holding it over the heart. Men without hats should salute in the same manner. Women should salute by placing the right hand over the heart.

The salute to the flag in the moving column should be rendered the moment the flag passes. When the Star Spangled Banner is played, all should stand at attention facing the music. Men in uniform should salute. Civilian men should remove their hats. When the flag is present, it should be faced and the salute rendered. The same observance should be given when the pledge of allegiance is said: "I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

(Lt. Col. Robert S. Allen now on active service with the Army)

Washington—The Kellems letters have brought the entire question of censoring the mail to a head in backstage conversations between Government agencies.

Actually, Chief Censor Byron Price isn't at all enthusiastic about opening people's mail, and recently took a confidential vote of different Government bureaus to see whether the system of intercepts should be continued. Out of 21 agencies, the vote was 9 to 9 for and against the continuing of intercepts until the war with Germany has been won; then only against Japan. Three agencies were noncommittal.

The intercept system means the opening of all mail between the United States and foreign countries, copying important portions and routing about twenty different copies to different agencies of the Government. Main purpose of this system is to detect important information regarding the enemy or to block information which might help the enemy.

All mail between the United States and a foreign country is opened. Mail to neutral countries, such as Portugal and Argentina, is studied with special care because those two countries are among the chief pipelines for Nazi information. Miss Vivien Kellems' letters written to a Nazi agent in Argentina naturally were opened, and copies were sent to the War and Navy Departments, the FBI, and other agencies supposed to watch Argentine Nazi affairs.

—ECONOMIC INFORMATION—

Although Censor Price has concurred with the Army and Navy regarding the necessity of opening foreign mail, he has hung back regarding the turning over of economic information to interested agencies such as the Foreign Economic Administration. This economic information is what the British were criticized for picking up during the last war, and which some Government insiders feel they are doing again in this war.

For instance, the British began preparing for censorship as early as the 1930's, when Norman Emsley, chief British censor expert in Washington, began building up a staff. Emsley handled the same job in the last war, and now has eight Britishers in the U. S. censorship office looking over U. S. intercepts.

Several times Leo Crowley's Foreign Economic Administration has pressed Price to let them put trained economists in the British censor's office to get information on British cartels. But Price has opposed this.

Meanwhile, a lot of U. S. companies doing business abroad find ways and means of dodging censorship by sending reports home via the "diplomatic pouch."

The censors themselves would be delighted to get rid of the whole thing. Meanwhile, Government experts interested in future U. S. trade believe we should watch British information just as carefully as they watch ours.

—AS WORKER TO WORKER—

Secretary of the Navy Forrestal and War Production expert Charlie Wilson were visiting the Dravo Company plant on the Ohio River near Pittsburgh, in order to spur production of landing barges.

A meeting of all kinds of workers—men, women, Negroes, foreign-born—was called to listen to the Secretary of the Navy and the vice chairman of the W.P.B. First, the head of the Dravo Company talked. The crowd listened politely. Then, Forrestal gave a nice speech in his best Princetonian accent. Again polite attention, but no enthusiasm.

Then Wilson spoke. He spread out his hands, large and powerful from working in factories from the time he was thirteen until he became an official and later the head of General Electric.

"You see those hands?" he said. "Those are hands that have done what you're doing. The bosses alone can't do what you're doing. We've got to depend on you—or some one over there on our side is going to get licked. So you give us twice as many barges during the month of May."

Tremendous cheers from the crowd. "We'll give you not twice as many," yelled one husky worker, "but four times as many barges."

And their work since then shows that they meant it.

—TWO-SIDED CONGRESSMEN—

If some one mysteriously rifles the offices of Public Reports, 55 West 42 St., New York, it should cause no surprise. For Rose Chayes, who runs the place, has committed the unpardonable sin of checking up on the speeches of Congressmen—namely, comparing what they say one day with what they say the next. Here, for instance, are some sample statements of one Congressman on one subject:

Jan. 11, 1941—"The lend-lease bill, if granted, would be the death knell of representative government, the kiss of death of Congress."

Feb. 2, 1943—"Where there is a will, there is always a way to assure the delivery of more lend-lease supplies to China without delay."

20 days later, Feb. 22, 1943—"We Americans applaud the heroism of the victorious Russian Army. We are determined to supply the Soviets with increasing quantities of lend-lease."

Two weeks later, March 8, 1943—"We opposed the lend-lease bill two years ago. None of us has changed his mind."

The gentleman speaking on all sides of the same subject was none other than the Honorable "Ham" Fish of New York.

Remember when congressmen used to send any and everybody free seeds—in the hope that they'd raise votes?

Worry Clinic

With Case Records Of
A Psychologist

BY DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE C-255: Henry D., aged 35, is a talented dentist.

"My wife is about to divorce me, however," he said, "because I can't let whiskey alone. It is ruining my home as well as my practice. I used to think I could quit the drink habit if I wanted to, but I guess I was wrong. What would you recommend?"

Diagnosis

I told Henry I would refer his case to our Chicago branch of the society called "Alcoholics Anonymous," which is made up of former drunkards from all walks of life.

One of our leading Chicago newspapermen is a dominant force in this society, for it contains many professional men and women, as well as laymen.

That same afternoon two men walked into Henry's dental office and introduced themselves. One was a doctor and the other a lawyer. They belonged to "Alcoholics Anonymous."

They bundled Henry into their auto and headed for Oak Park, a suburb of Chicago, where the weekly meeting was to be held that night.

Henry had called his wife just before he left the office, but she upbraided him for not coming home, alleging that he was simply going on another spree.

So he took some pamphlets home with him as evidence, and is now headed back to normalcy and freedom from the drink habit.

"Alcoholics Anonymous" employs several sound psychological principles in curing chronic drunkards.

First, it gets them to confess that they are helpless victims of alcohol. As long as a man tries to kid himself along by saying he can always quit liquor, as well as tobacco, whenever he wants to do so, he will rarely be able to break the dominance of such bad habits.

But as soon as he openly admits that he is a slave to these chemical agents, there is hope of helping him. He is then told that chronic alcoholism is a disease.

Moreover, he associates with others who have previously sunk to the depths of degradation and poverty because of liquor. They match his story with their own autobiographies, for they have "testimonial" and "confessional" periods at every meeting.

He feels better to know, therefore, that he is in a crowd like himself who also have been victims of this alcoholic disease.

Hints For Churches

Then he becomes the protégé of one of the cured members. The latter is responsible for his welfare. If he begins to backslide, his sponsor is right on the job and may call in other members to help buoy up the weakening morale of the new member.

They keep telling him that they also did some backsliding, but not to worry, for he'll be cured. This is excellent positive suggestion and re-stimulates him to renewed courage.

As such, it is far superior to the criticism of the wife or family who tell him "I knew you couldn't quit."

As soon as the victim is cured, then he is immediately made sponsor of some other newcomer to the organization. This responsibility for setting an example to his protégé; thus helps inspire the cured member and keep him on the right track.

This technique of open confession, plus a weekly testimonial meeting amid other sinners, plus the help of a dynamic sponsor, plus the later responsibility of having a protégé, is good strategy for the churches, too.

(Always write to Dr. Crane, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long 3c stamped, addressed envelope and a dime to cover typing or printing costs when you seek personal advice or one of his psychological charts.)

TRUCKERS HOLD MEETING HERE

Maintenance Of Equipment Stressed At Conference

Approximately 150 truckers, garage owners and mechanics and others attended the motor vehicle preventive and maintenance clinic conducted here Friday evening at the city hall by the Escanaba motor vehicle maintenance advisory committee and the Office of Defense Transportation. Art Jensen, secretary of the Escanaba committee, presided.

Edward J. Konkol, district manager of the ODT, Green Bay, stressed the need for cooperation by owners, drivers and mechanics of the motor industry in order to keep the trucks rolling during the war emergency.

Konkol pointed out that only 88,000 new commercial vehicles will be constructed for civilian use this year as compared with 500,000 to 750,000 trucks that will be taken out of service due to wear, accidents and other causes. No light trucks will be included in this total, he reported.

He emphasized that the problem is strictly one of maintenance and informed truckers that the ODT is prepared to offer assistance in locating spare parts, tires, etc.

Synthetic Tubes Faulty

Walter Dettman, a member of the Green Bay motor vehicle maintenance advisory committee, outlined some of the problems involved in the use of synthetic rubber tires. He declared that the synthetic tires will provide only 50 to 60% performance as compared with pre-war crude rubber.

Ann had an average of 94.93 percent in scholarship during her high school course, and Kerwin, an average of 93.08 percent.

tires and advised motorists to check their tires daily, to avoid overloads and to remove nails, glass, etc. in the tread.

Dettman revealed that the synthetic tubes lack the elasticity of crude rubber and that once stretched beyond normal limits, they lose their shape. He also added that cold patching is unsatisfactory on synthetic tubes and explained the necessity of vulcanizing this type rubber.

John W. Clish, maintenance specialist of the ODT, lectured on the proper care of motor vehicles through proper lubrication and checking. He stressed the importance of the cooling system and urged motorists to check their trucks regularly for loose bolts, undue tire wear, etc., in order to avoid a large overhaul job.

Ray McGinn, member of the Green Bay maintenance advisory committee, explained the metalizing process by which metal is sprayed to build up vital working parts on crankshafts, pistons, etc. He declared that this process has rehabilitated many functional parts that now are irreplaceable.

The program included the showing of two motion pictures, "The Construction of the Alcan Highway" and "Victory's Oil", a film showing the laying of the huge pipe lines from Texas to the east coast.

Early Escanaba Days

Franklin School Was Considered Last Word

BY JOHN P. NORTON

A wood cut, showing the present Franklin school building, at Seventh street and Second avenue south, appeared in the Iron Port, Sept. 9, 1882 and gave to the people of the village of Escanaba their first view of that pioneer school structure, that was destined to remain the principal seat of education in the town for many years. The Franklin building, completed in the winter of 1882-83, served as the combined high school-grade school building, until Escanaba had shed her swaddling clothes and growth in population made necessary the present high school building and the various school buildings now located about the city.

Construction of the building was started in the early summer of 1882 and when the first view of the building was published by the Iron Port the structure would be completed and ready for occupancy, with the opening of the "winter term," in January, 1883.

Modern School Building

Accompanying the cut, the Iron Port gave description of what was then recognized as one of the finest and most modern school buildings in the peninsula. According to the view of the building, with the exception of the removal of a bell tower, that surmounted the entrance on Seventh street, the Franklin presents the same outlines today as it did in the year of its dedication. The editor's description of the building follows: The house will contain seven school rooms, two rooms for the janitor in the basement. It will be heated and ventilated by a furnace in the basement, the ventilation being downward in each of the rooms and the vitiated air being conducted by flues to the main stack, and so discharged at its top. The house will accommodate the high, grammar and intermediate schools, leaving the primaries to be sheltered in the newer of two wooden buildings now in use and will be a long step in advance in our school arrangements. G. P. Randall, Esq., of Chicago is the architect in charge. The contractors, Snow & Aslip, are pushing its erection vigorously and propose to have the building ready for occupation on the commencement of the winter term, after the Christmas holidays.

And while the people of Escanaba, in that early day were primarily concerned with providing better school accommodations for their boys and girls, the citizens of this and other counties, that then comprised the Eleventh congressional district, were taking an excited interest in a movement to remove a congressman, who had held office for ten years and substituting in his place a leading citizen of Marquette county, Edward N. Breitung, of Negaunee. When the congressional district convention was held at St. Ignace in the fall of 1882, the name of Hon. Jay A. Hubbell, congressman for the district for ten years, was not even presented to the meeting.

The Eleventh district was then made up of the following counties: Baraga, Benzie, Chippewa, Delta, Grand Traverse, Houghton, Isle Royale, Keweenaw, Leelanaw, Mackinac, Manistow, Marquette, Menominee, Ontonagon, and Schoolcraft.

Crowded Over Victory
Col. VanDuzer, of the Iron Port, had taken a leading place in the political battle in the district to substitute Mr. Breitung, for Congressman Hubbell and when victory was achieved, he "crowded" lustily, to the extent of nearly a column, in his newspaper. The gist of victory editorial follows: For years this district has suffered from misrepresentation and no representation whatever, in the lower house of congress, at the hands of Jay A. Hubbell; and the disgrace of keeping this individual in such an honorable position has become not merely a local, but a national matter. That his own district should be the first to repudiate him was most proper and it was done in a very positive manner. At the convention in St. Ignace which nominated Mr. Breitung, Mr. Hubbell's name was not even mentioned and the expected complimentary vote for him was very wisely omitted.

Mr. Breitung requires no commendation at our hands. He is known to all the electors of the district as an honest, upright, self-made man. He is emphatic-

Mrs. A. Seymour Dies In Milwaukee

Mrs. Arthur Seymour, 67, of Milwaukee, former resident of Escanaba, died on May 19, at her home. She had been in poor health for three years.

Surviving are her husband, two adopted daughters, Mrs. Joseph Beaudreau and Mrs. Marvin Hensell of Milwaukee; and one brother, Clifford J. LeClaire of Perkins.

Funeral services were held on May 22 at St. Hedwig's church, with burial in Holy Cross cemetery. Those attending the services included Mrs. Amelia Morin, Joseph Guay and Elmer Brazeau of Escanaba, Clifford LeClaire of Perkins and Fred LeClaire of Rock.

ly the peoples' man and we predict for him a vote far in excess of his party. He will enter congress without the aid of the liars, pillagers and land thieves connected with the machine and, straight forward and untrammelled, will be a representative of the people, in the fullest sense of the word.

Officer On Leave From Hawaii Greet Mother For Her Son

The spirit of courtesy and kindness prevalent among the armed forces made an Escanaba mother very happy, Saturday.

Mrs. Rudolph Schwarz, of 112 South Ninth street, busy with her household work, answered a telephone call, and within a few minutes was talking to Captain Miller, commanding officer of her son, Sgt. Rudolph H. Schwarz, in Hawaii.

At his home in Idaho, on an emergency leave, Captain Miller immediately put in the call, which Sgt. Schwarz had asked him to make, and gave Mrs. Schwarz first-hand news of her son. "It was almost like talking to Rudy, himself," was the comment of the happy and excited mother.

"Say ...

You Ought to See a Chiropractor!"

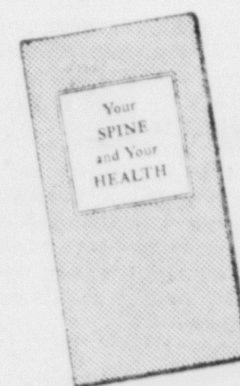

To THOSE suffering needlessly the pain of lumbago, sacro-iliac sprain, and similar back ailments, practical advice throughout the years has been "See a Chiropractor." For, as a means of giving quick, lasting relief in such conditions, chiropractic has long been recognized.

The same advice is now being offered with increasing frequency to men and women suffering from internal disorders; particularly, conditions which, for seemingly obscure reasons, have not yielded to other treatments.

More and more people are realizing that many afflictions, other than obvious back ailments, can be caused or aggravated by a painless, functional failure somewhere along the spine that affects the action of vital nerves.

In fact, "See a Chiropractor" is friendly advice to most people because the majority of human beings (for reasons fully explained in the booklet mentioned below) have some kind of spinal disturbance, even though it may not yet be causing apparent harm. Unattended, a spinal disorder always threatens health.

So, it's good practice any day to "See a Chiropractor" for a thorough spinal check-up.

IRON MINING REPORT ISSUED

Minnesota And Michigan
Continue To Be
Top Producers

Minnesota, Michigan and Alabama continue to be the three leading iron mining states, with substantial production coming from other states at scattered locations throughout the country, the Bureau of Mines report on 1943 output reveals.

Minnesota iron ore production comes from three iron ranges—the Mesabi, Vermilion and Cuyuna. Michigan produces iron ore from the Marquette, Menominee and the Gogebic iron ranges. Alabama is unique in that its iron ore is located adjacent to coal and limestone deposits, at the same time supporting modern steel plants in the midst of its raw material area. New York state came into expanded production of iron ore in 1943 from the long established mines in the Lake Champlain area, and the newer producers of the Clinton Ore company, near DeGrasse, and the Jones & Laughlin Ore company at Star Lake, both in St. Lawrence county.

Iron ore production from Pennsylvania in 1943, as it has for many years, came from the Cornwall division of the Bethlehem Steel company, in southeastern Pennsylvania. Wisconsin, which claims the western productive end of the Gogebic iron range, at Hurley and Montreal, obtains its iron ore production there.

The following table lists the rank of the principal iron mining states: Minnesota, 77,106,000 net tons; Michigan, 16,289,000; Alabama, 9,108,000; New York and Pennsylvania, combined, 2,992,000; Wisconsin, 1,593,000; Wyoming, 1,100,000; New Jersey 582,000; Georgia and Virginia, 375,000.

Rafts Of Pulpwood Come From Canada

The seasonal transportation of large pulpwood rafts of Canadian logs on Lake Superior has been resumed.

The tug Britannia was en route last week from Nipigon Bay, Ont., on a cross-lake route to Ashland, Wis. The tug in this unique type of transportation floats the logs in the raft at the regular rate of one mile per hour. All lake boats on Lake Superior were notified to be on the lookout to avoid possible collision with the raft.

The Munising Paper company receives rafts of pulpwood annually from Canada.

Peter And Jacob Groos Fill Clerkship 66 Years

Wells township has had only two township clerks in its 66 years of history—the late Peter Groos, and his son Jacob A. Groos. Their service for over a half century to the citizens of their township is believed to establish a record in the state, perhaps in the nation.

Way back in 1878, when Wells township was still a part of Escanaba township, the late Peter Groos was elected township clerk. About six years later Escanaba township was divided and the southern part was organized into Wells township. Peter Groos became Wells townships' first clerk and held the office until his death in 1902.

Jacob A. Groos was at that time postmaster of the village of Groos, and was appointed to fill the vacancy created at the death of his father.

He has held the office continuously since—a period of 42 years. Evidence of the high regard in which he is held in his community is that only once in those 42 years has he been opposed for reelection as township clerk—and his opponent polled less than 10 votes.

Until the last few years Jacob Groos was actively engaged in operating the Groos Dairy Farms and keeping a large herd of registered Holstein cattle. Before taking up farming he operated the quarry at Groos, was in the building and crushed stone business, built roads in Wells township and streets in Escanaba. In 1906 he sold the quarry to John Biehler, Sr., and it is now being operated by Biehler Brothers.

Jacob Groos is one of three sons born to Mr. and Mrs. Peter Groos, pioneer family in this community. Other sons are Dr. John Groos, Peter and Jacob Groos.

Jacob was born Feb. 19, 1874, at Troy, Michigan, the year before the family moved to Flat Rock, where Pioneer Train Park is today.

In 1876 the family moved to Escanaba and resided in a small house where the city hall now stands. In 1880 Peter Groos bought the farm and built the house in which Jacob Groos still lives.

When they first moved to Flat Rock the nearest neighbors were Indians, whose huts were located along the Escanaba river.

Jacob Groos attended school at Flat Rock, St. Joseph's school in Escanaba, and later attended Green Bay Business College. He was appointed postmaster at Groos on January 1, 1900, and continued as postmaster until the postoffice was destroyed by fire 13 years later, and was not resumed.

The Groos have six children, Alfred, Joseph, John, Clinton, Victor and Olive, now Mrs. Byron Ford.

Always actively interested in his community, Jacob Groos today maintains that interest and continues to serve as Wells township clerk—an office held by the Groos family, father and son, for 66 years. Among his other interests is his flower garden, a hobby that has won him the admiration of all who love beautiful flowers.

MUNISING CHIEF SPIKES RUMORS

Stories About Police
Are Malicious Lies,
Says Frank Chase

Spiking what he termed "malicious lies" regarding activities of the municipal police department, Frank B. Chase, Munising police chief, Saturday in a signed statement denied emphatically that there were drunken students at the junior prom at Mather high school and that police had staged a raid on Stone's cabins.

The chief's statement follows: "It has been called to my attention that there were two occasions where the department made so-called raids. It was rumored that police took five or six young high school students out of the junior prom on May 12 in an intoxicated condition. This is a malicious lie. The prom was well conducted and all students were orderly and well behaved.

"The other story is that on the night of May 13, the municipal police raided the Pictured Rocks hotel and Stone's cabins, taking several men and women out of the cabins. This also is a malicious lie.

"I have been unable to track these lies down to any one person. I am, therefore, making this statement to give the general public the facts and for the sake of the reputation of those reported and rumored to have been involved in these mythical raids."

BRIEFS

R. W. Nebel has gone to Hot Springs, Ark., where he will spend several weeks.

Lee Rooker, U. S. Air Corps, arrived home Saturday morning to spend a short furlough.

COPPER OUTPUT REPORT ISSUED

Michigan Is 6th Among States In 1943
Production

Washington, D. C.—Michigan is the sixth state in the national production of copper for 1943, which reached an all-time new high.

The total mine production for the year was about 1,087,630 short tons of copper, an increase of one per cent over 1942. Of this enormous total Arizona contributed 37 per cent, Utah 30 per cent, Montana 12 per cent, New Mexico seven per cent, Nevada six per cent, and Michigan four per cent. The total for all other states was four per cent.

The mine output of copper was valued at $283,783,800 last year, an increase of eight per cent over 1942. The average price per pound was 13 cents. There was a serious shortage of experienced miners and muckers in the copper mines of the nation throughout the year. To alleviate the situation somewhat the U. S. Army released in the latter part of the year 4,300 men for work in copper, zinc and molybdenum mines.

Arizona produced nearly 400,000 tons of refined copper last year, largely from the Phelps-Dodge properties. Utah came next with a little over 300,000 tons, and Montana, with 141,000 tons.

The principal Michigan copper producer is the Calumet and Hecla Consolidated Copper company. Other mines operating continuously throughout the year were those of the Copper Range company, Isle Royale Copper company and the Quincy Mining company.

News From Men In The Service

Corporal Arnold Turan of Isabella recently arrived in England, according to a message received by his wife. He joined the army April 4, 1941.

Wallace A. Bolm, apprentice seaman, who has been visiting at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bolm, 216 South Seventeenth street, after completing his boot training, has returned to the Great Lakes navy training station.

Cpl. Edmund Pennings, who has been serving in the South Pacific for 28 months, has returned to the States and is now confined in Ward 29, U. S. Navy Hospital, Seattle, Wash., while receiving treatment for tropical fever. He is the son of Mrs. Anne Pennings, 1504 First Avenue South.

Pfc. Reino Kinnunen of Daggett arrived home Saturday on leave after spending 18 months overseas. He has seen action in Africa, Sicily and Italy. Pfc. Kinnunen has been awarded the Silver Star for gallantry in action. He is a brother of Mrs. Gerard Depuydt of Perkins.

Sgt. Parker Pennings, son of Mrs. Anne Pennings, 1504 First Avenue South, left for overseas service early in May, his mother has been advised.

Staff Sergeant George R. Mercier, member of an infantry division in the U. S. Army, has been cited and received the Silver Star for gallantry in action, according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Mercier of 211 North 11th street.

The Silver Star citation reads: "Staff Sergeant George R. Mercier, infantry, U. S. Army, for gallantry in action on February 4, 1944, in the Kwajalein campaign. Realizing the necessity for daring and individual action when the advance of his squad was held up by heavy and accurate fire from a pile of wood about 50 yards to the front, Staff Sergeant Mercier with utter disregard for his own personal safety, on two separate occasions crawled through the fire-swept area to destroy the enemy with incendiary grenades. By his gallant and unselfish leadership in performing this courageous act, Staff Sergeant Mercier was of great inspiration to his men and insured the success of the action."

Marshall Paul Dupic, S 2/c, USN, whose wife Mrs. M. P. Dupic lives at 103 N. 19th street, city was among recent guests at the United Nations Service Center on Union Station Plaza, Washington, D. C. The center is primarily designed for transient personnel of the United Nations armed forces—officers and enlisted men and women, and their immediate families.

NEW OWNERS OF 22 BETTER BULLS claimed their animals in Escanaba yesterday at the U. P. state fair grounds, the first shipment of pure bred sires to be brought to the Upper Peninsula in a program designed to improve dairy herd production. There were a total of 24 bulls in the first truckload from Lower Michigan. Two of the animals went to Schoolcraft county farmers, five to Menominee dairymen, and the remaining 17 were purchased by farmers of Delta county. The better bulls program is sponsored by the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau with county agricultural agents cooperating. So far a total of 97 bulls have been purchased above the Straits and the others will be delivered in later shipments. The bulls are all from herds with high production records, and the purchase is made easier through a down-payment plan at the time of ordering, the remainder to be paid on delivery. Wallace's Trip Will Help Him Politically

BY MARQUIS CHILDS

Washington—Any of Henry Wallace's implacable enemies who still cherish the hope that he is being sent to China merely to get him out of the way politically had better give up the idea. His mission to Siberia and Chuching is far more important than anyone has said publicly.

For one thing, the Russians are going to show him their remarkable new industrial cities in Siberia. He was assured before he left Washington that he would be allowed to visit ten flourishing communities that no American has ever seen before.

M. Childs

In relation, of course, to the ultimate lineup for the final blow against Japan, these industrial centers may have great importance. When he flew back home across the top of the world, Wendell Willkie visited one such community, Yakutsk, capital of the Republic of Yakutsk. In his book, "One World," Willkie gave a glowing account of this community of workers that had been carved out of the Siberian wilderness.

Wallace will be able to gauge the strength of this military-industrial potential. He will report fully on it on his return. This chore is in addition to his good-will mission—which has other implications, too—to China.

Conferred With Hannegan
The day before he left on the mission that will take him thousands of air miles across country, Wallace had an hour's talk with Robert E. Hannegan, chairman of the Democratic National committee. Neither man has disclosed the nature of their conversation, but it's a pretty safe guess that the question of the vice presidential nomination was at least mentioned. The background of this talk is interesting.

Hannegan, a professional politician and a capable one, has been interested in finding a more acceptable, that is, to party henchmen who must get out the vote, and to southern conservatives. He thought that his job in the fall would be an easier one with a less controversial figure as a running mate for Roosevelt.

In the course of a discussion with the president, Hannegan is said to have intimated that in his opinion Wallace was a political liability. FDR took issue with that judgment. His reply went something like this:

"You will have to prove to me that Henry is a liability. And it will be difficult to convince me."

Alternates suggested by Hannegan included Secretary of State Hull, who ducked a similar suggestion in 1940, and Senator Harry S. Truman of Hannegan's own state, Missouri. Many of Truman's friends have been hopeful that second place would go in the final showdown to the chairman of the war investigating committee. The Missouri senator has in recent weeks increased his speech-making activities, appearing on platforms in various parts of the country.

F. D. R. Likes Wallace
Apart from his excellent showing in the polls, and the fact that organized labor, within the CIO at any rate, is pledged to him, Wallace has the loyalty of the president. FDR has an almost superstitious reluctance to part with those who have been his close associates. It would be very difficult for him to reject Wallace at the moment when he must decide on his running mate.

Nevertheless, there's still a chance he will be thrown to the southern wolves that now are baying for blood. The current threat of the little oligarchy which rules the south is apparently a real one. Despite a popular vote for Roosevelt, the Democratic candidate in the November election, electors chosen by the oligarchy might cast their vote for someone else. Nothing in the constitution would prevent them from doing so. It would, of course, be a step calculated to cause the utmost confusion and uncertainty at a critical time, tending to throw as much discredit as possible on the Democratic process which may be what the oligarchy wants.

Gone off with his Russian grammar in his pocket, serious-minded Henry Wallace will return with a report which should be of vital interest to the country. His position as a candidate should be strengthened rather than weakened.

Flow into him again, his face filled out, the glaze left his eyes, and the famous MacDonald smile and MacDonald barbed retort began to return.

Mac had everything to live for, and he loved being alive. He was young, tall, handsome, brilliant, engaging. He had a sensitive mind and he would have been a novelist had there been no war.

Among Americans he was the best liked British correspondent I have ever known. With his Scottish and Australian heritage he understood us. He would kid the pants off us about the way we talked, and mimic our flat pronunciation in his yawns. He in turn took the same razzing about his Oxford accent.

He had never been to America but it was his one ambition to go there. Like most correspondents, Mac felt that he had to write a book. He had it about two-thirds finished when he came to our camp to recuperate, he tapped away belligerently on his little typewriter, cursing the day he ever started the book, resenting the deadline his London publishers were heckling him with. But he did finish it.

The day I arrived in London from Italy I went into a bookstore, and I noticed Mac's book. I bought it just because I knew Mac, and brought it home and put it on the table, but never did read it.

Now I will read it. What an ironic world, that only the compulsion of death makes us do for our friends—in more ways than merely reading a book—what we should have done while they still lived.

I suppose my best friend in Italy was Lieut. Col. Ed. Bland, a dive-bomber squadron leader. He was a tall, blonde Westerner of 28, who looked much older than he was and who had the open honesty and good humor of the West. Word has just come that he has been shot down.

Probably the story has been told already in America, for Ed was popular with all the correspondents. The letter that brought the word to me said this: "Ed was strafing about 30 feet above the ground when a small shell set his plane afire underneath. Ed didn't know it until his wingman radioed. Then he climbed to 1500 feet and bailed out."

"The wing man said his chute didn't open till he was 200 feet from the ground. There was a great deal of shooting, and one theory is that it was directed at him, but majority opinion ruled differently and the boys believe he is O. K."

Wick Fowler of The Dallas News was a close friend of Ed's. We used to sit around indulging in idle talk and Ed was always talking about how funny it would be to telephone Rome for hotel reservations and throw the Germans into a panic.

After I left Italy Ed's oil line stopped up one day on a mission near Rome and he was certain he would have to bail out. Later he told Wick that while he was in trouble and sure he'd have to jump he got to thinking about the telephone idea and had to laugh to himself.

And now that he really has bailed out, Wick sends along this thought in a letter:

"Ed's time was short at 1500 but I have a hunch the telephone idea came to him again on the way down."

If Ed did call up Rome for reservations I hope the Germans gave him the royal suite, for he's the best there is.

Jim Crowley Back From 18 Months In South Pacific

New Rochelle, N. Y., May 26 (P)—Lt. Comdr. James Crowley, former football coach at Fordham, arrived home last night from almost 18 months in the South Pacific and reports Monday for duty at Sampson, N. Y., naval base.

Crowley, who will take over the coaching duties of the Boston club in the National Football League when peace returns, said that "I have lost 15 pounds since I was home last and I feel great."

WILLOW RUN, A B-24 HIVE

Ford Plant To Fly Out Bomber Every Hour

BY DAVID J. WILKIE

Detroit, (P)—Giant four-engined B-24 Liberator Bombers soon will be flying away from the Ford-operated Willow Run bomber plant at an average rate of one every hour.

The big factory recently reached a production level of one bomber every working hour, but the output included a considerable number in component form shipped elsewhere for final assembly. More than 1700 B-24's have been shipped from Willow Run to Tulsa, Okla., and Fort Worth, Texas, for final assembly. Considerably more than that number have been completed at Willow Run. Within a few weeks contracts calling for shipment of "knock-down" planes will be completed and output at Willow Run will be entirely on a fly-away basis, plus the usual replacement units.

Completion of the contracts for "knock-down" shipments may speed up the final lines. The "knock-downs" have been sub-assembled on the four primary lines in exactly the same manner as are the components of the planes intended for the plant's two final assembly lines.

Thus the "knock-downs" are not hundreds of small pieces but large sub-assemblies ready to go directly to the final assembly line at Tulsa or Fort Worth. They are composed in the main of nose fuselage, tail fuselage, center and outer wing sections and tail assemblies.

A number of government furnished equipment items, such as engines, gun turrets, propellers, flying instruments and radio equipment are supplied directly to the point of final assembly by the government.

Making the greatest possible use of mass production methods, Willow Run has broken down the building of the big bombers into a number of successive stages of completed operations. Each successive stage combines more and more parts and assemblies into progressively larger units until the finished craft is sent to a nearby hangar for final engine preparation and initial test flight.

Catch Boys Breaking Beachhouse Windows

Three minor boys, two ten years of age, the other 11, were apprehended the other evening smashing glass brick windows in the Beach House on the shore.

Thirty-odd brick were broken, although the boys disclaimed breaking all of them.

The boys were caught by Police Chief Torvald Kallerson and Sgt. Willard Wixom who stopped when they saw the boys on the roof of the beach house. As they approached the boys, the first exclamation from one of them was "I didn't break no windows."

A checkup then revealed the vandalism and the boys were questioned by the officers further.

The case has been turned over to County Agent Hilding Granberg.

Special Meetings At Bethel Church

The Bethel Evangelical Free church announces a week of special meetings beginning today, with Evangelist A. J. Thorwall of Minneapolis, Minn. Rev. Thorwall is the evangelist for the Minnesota district of the Evangelical Free churches of America.

Willis-Newhouse
Miss Kathryn Willis, daughter of Mrs. Lorraine Willis, of 311 South Seventh street, Gladstone, and Corporal Robert F. Newhouse, of the United States Army Air Corps, stationed at Lincoln, Nebr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Newhouse, 1708 First Avenue South, Escanaba, were united in marriage at a ceremony at All Saints' Catholic church Saturday morning, May 27.

Rev. Fr. Joseph Schaul, who was celebrant of the 8:30 o'clock nuptial mass, solemnized the service.

The Mass of the Sacred Heart was sung by the church choir and at the Offertory Miss Mary Waznick sang Gounod's "Ave Maria." Mrs. C. A. LaFave, organist, played the traditional bridal marches and during the Communion she played "The Rosary."

Attending the couple were Miss Leona DeCook, of Gladstone, and Francis Breault of Escanaba.

The bride wore an aqua green suit with a veiled matching hat and brown accessories, and her flowers were a corsage of red roses and snapdragons. Miss DeCook's suit was of a gold shade and her accessories, black and pink roses and snapdragons formed her corsage.

Mrs. Willis, the bride's mother, wore navy blue with matching accessories and Mrs. Newhouse also wore navy blue with navy accessories. Both mothers had corsages of red roses and sweetpeas.

A wedding breakfast for the bride party was served at Belle's Coffee shop in Escanaba, and at 4:30 o'clock a reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents, followed by a wedding supper for thirty guests.

The three-tiered wedding cake, topped by a miniature soldier and his bride, centered the appointments.

The couple left immediately following the supper on a wedding trip to an unannounced destination. The bride will remain at the home of her mother for the present and later will join her husband when he receives his assignment to a new post.

The bride, a graduate of All Saints' school and of Gladstone high school, class of 1942, has been employed at the Daily Press office in Gladstone for the past year. Corporal Newhouse who is a graduate of Escanaba high school, class of 1941, has been in the service for the past year and a half, and was graduated on May 21 from Gunnery School, Laredo Army Air Field, Laredo, Texas, where he received his wings.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Frank Newhouse, Mrs. Florence Almon-roeder and daughters, Ella Marie and Anna Mae Servis, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Casey and children, Joyce and Richard and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Anskis and daughters, Patricia and Marilyn, all of Escanaba.

MANY CHILDREN
ATTEND CLINIC

Total Of 275 Children
Of Pre-School Age
At Both Clinics

Unprecedented success of the pre-school clinics which took place in Manistique Friday was reported yesterday by both the District Department of Health and the combined PTA organizations, sponsors of the project.

A total of 275 children of pre-school age attended the two clinics and were given immunization treatments, the health department reports.

At Lakeside school, where the clinic was operated in the morning, the attendance was registered at 100 children. And at Lincoln school the attendance totaled 175 children. Children were weighed and measured, given immunization treatments and inoculations, and in some cases a thorough physical check up. Ideal weather made it possible for a maximum number of parents to take their children to the clinics.

Examinations and treatments were given by Dr. George Shaw, Dr. N. L. Lindquist, and Dr. A. R. Tucker. Assistant nurses were Miss Harriet Hird, acting director of the Alger-Schoolcraft county health department, and Miss Hazel Stroff, clerk of the Community Health Service class of the high school worked at both clinics, aiding the doctors and nurses and amusing the children.

In Memoriam
In loving memory of our beloved son and brother, William (Billy) A. Donovan, who passed away one day ago today, May 28, 1943.

The moon and stars are shining.
On a lone and silent grave,
Beneath them lies one dearly loved.

And whom we could not save.
He left behind some broken hearts.
That loved him most sincere,
That never did, or never will,
Forget you, Billy dear.

Sadly missed by his parents,
sister and brother.

POLICE PROBE
3 BURGLARIES

Nortons, Lenons, And
Ann Arbor Depot
Were Entered

The breaking and entering of three Manistique business places on Thursday night was still under investigation yesterday by city and state police.

Places entered during the night included Lenon's Standard Service Station, Norton's Grocery and the M. & L. S. railroad depot. Lenon's was entered by breaking a window on the south side of the building. Several dollars in cash were a small amount of money and possibly some merchandise was taken, the building was entered by breaking the glass in the front door. The Ann Arbor depot was entered through a window as well. Only item missing at the depot was a fountain pen, police said.

Only clue reported by the police was a distinct boot print in the sand. Detailed investigation had failed to provide a further clue to the identity of the criminals, police reported yesterday.

Pavlot Fined $25
On Liquor Charge

Frank J. Pavlot, owner of Pavlot's Tavern on old US-2 near Manistique, paid a fine of $25 after appearing before Michigan Liquor Control Commissioner Felix Flynn on a violation charge Friday afternoon.

Pavlot was charged with selling beer to an intoxicated person. His hearing took place at the state police post here.

Girls Must Register
For Timber Trail
Summer Camping

Timber Trail Girl Scout Camp registrations must be in by June 3, according to Mrs. John Girvin, Jr., who is in charge of registration for Manistique girls. Camp will open on July 2 and carry on for six weeks, the first and last weeks being one week sessions, and the four middle weeks divided into two sessions of two weeks each.

Registrations must be accompanied by a $2 fee, it was explained, this fee serving as part of the payment for the camp period. Camp costs this year are $10, of which $2 is paid for every girl by the local council, leaving $8 a week to be paid by the girl.

Camping is an important part of a girl's development, according to Mrs. Arthur Adams, camp chairman of the Manistique Girl Scout Council. In the camp situation, without home background, every girl learns to stand on her own feet, she said, and establishes her own value to the community. Social, mental and physical development are rapid, and tend to bring out the best in every girl, she felt.

In addition the room will be furnished with benches being built by the Manistique Pulp and Paper company.

With these new improvements, Scouts expect to utilize the building more than has been done in the past.

Social

Surprise Party

Rev. William Harrington of the First Baptist church was the honored guest at a surprise party on Thursday evening in the church parlors, following the regular prayer meeting. The party, which was arranged in honor of his birthday anniversary by the senior choir and the Philathea Bible class, was attended by sixty members of the church and other guests.

A fine program was given after which a social evening was enjoyed.

Refreshments were served at the close of the evening. A birthday cake was the centerpiece of the table which was decorated in blue and yellow.

Rev. Harrington was presented with a purse of silver from the group.

Birthday Party

A large group of young people assembled at the Bethel Baptist parsonage Friday evening for a surprise birthday party on Grace Martinson, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Harold Martinson.

A social evening of games was enjoyed after which a delicious lunch was served by Mrs. Martinson. The table was centered with a decorated birthday cake with fifteen lighted candles.

Miss Martinson was presented with many lovely gifts from her friends.

Scout Building
Being Improved

The Scout building at the fairgrounds is being improved through the cooperation of two local firms, Scout officials announce.

Scouts of troops 60 and 61 this week are busy laying a new floor, the material being rubber belting donated by the Inland Lime and Stone company. The heavy belting provides insulation for the concrete floor which has been too cold for winter meetings, Scouts say.

In addition the room will be furnished with benches being built by the Manistique Pulp and Paper company.

With these new improvements, Scouts expect to utilize the building more than has been done in the past.

Fat Salvage Was Successful Here
In Friday's Drive

Another successful fat salvage collection was staged Friday by the pupils of the Central and Lakeside schools, it was announced by the Lakeside-Central Parent Teacher association salvage chairman, Mrs. Arthur Adams.

A total of 100 pounds of fat was turned in by the school children. This time it was the Lakeside school which distinguished itself, bringing in over two-thirds of the total amount, Mrs. Adams reported.

The salvaging of this fat will assist in the war effort by providing material for torpedoes and bullets, for medical supplies to heal our wounded, it was pointed out. This is one way in which the children can help fight the war, Mrs. Adams said, and suggested that the children keep up the good work during the summer by collecting all the fats they can and turning them in to the nearest market.

The money earned by the salvaging of the fat will defray in part the cost of the ice cream for the picnic, and the balance of the cost will come from the PTA treasury, so that this year the children will not need to pay for their own picnic treat.

A social worker was called to a poor home in the country. A small boy answered her knock at the door. "Is your father home?", she asked. "No", said the boy, "I ain't got none". "Is your mother home?", he was asked. "She's out scrubbing", he replied. Further questioning disclosed that he had no sisters, but he had one brother. "Where is your brother, then?", he asked. "He's in Harvard", said the boy. "It certainly seems strange that you have a brother in Harvard, and you are so poor", the nurse remarked. "What is your brother doing in Harvard?", she then asked. "He's in a glass jar—he's got two heads".

All of which goes to prove—TWO HEADS ARE BETTER THAN ONE! In this case two heads got a boy in Harvard, but if you and your neighbor get your heads together and talk over dry cleaning, you will conclude that there's only one place to take your clothing:

14 Schools Compete In Upper Peninsula Relays Here Tuesday

TEAM ENTRIES ARE RECEIVED

Officials For 17th Annual Track Classic Announced

Fourteen schools and approximately 100 athletes will compete in the 17th annual Upper Peninsula Relays at the Escanaba athletic field Tuesday afternoon, May 30, Principal Edward E. Edick announced yesterday.

Entries have been received from Escanaba, Ironwood, Kingsford, Manistique, Negaunee, Gladstone, Hancock, L'Anse, Munising, St. Ambrose of Ironwood, Baraga, Eben, Hermansville and Stephenson.

Channing high school has withdrawn its entry, it was learned yesterday, because several boys on the track team have been called for military service and will be unavailable.

The meet will start promptly at one o'clock with preliminaries in the pole vault, the low hurdles and the 100 yard dash.

The finals will be in the following order: pole vault, 200 yard low hurdles, Class C-D 440 relay, Class B mile relay, Class D medley, Class C medley, Class B medley, relays, century, two mile relay, Class D 880 relay, Class C 880 relay and Class B 880 relay.

Officials for the meet are as follows:

Referee—Bevier Butts, city recreational director, Escanaba.

Starter—Wm. Puckelwartz, Escanaba junior high school coach. Judges of finish—Cliff Frasher, St. Joseph coach, chief judge; assisted by John Edick, Father Freiburger, Father Nadeau, Al Starr.

Timers—Al Ness, Bay de Noc speed skating club, chief timer; assisted by Vic Lemmer and George Ruwitch.

Clerk of course—Clarence Zerb, principal, junior high school. Track judges—John Bartel, George Grab, Lyle Shaw.

Field judge, pole vault—R. C. Shaw. Field marshals—Oscar Berglund, Paul Bowers, B. B. Loveland, John Nicholas, Nick Petry, Phil Sullivan and Clarence Pearson.

Assistant clerk of course—Fred Benette.

Announcer—Bert Henne.

YOUNG MISSES FEAT ON SPILL

Well-Balanced Michigan Team Captures Seventh Big Ten Title

BY CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

Champaign, Ill., May 27. (AP)—Clyde "Buddy" Young of Illinois, trying for his fourth victory of the day—a feat which would have equaled Jesse Owens' Western Conference sweep in 1935—tripped over the last barrier in the 220-yard low hurdles race today and fell on a water-filled track to miss his goal in the meet.

In a heavy downpour which transformed the cinder lane into a river, Illinois' stubby, 15-year-old freshman stumbled and plowed on his stomach through the water like an outboard motorboat after leading Michigan's Jack Martin, the eventual winner, by about 20 feet.

Michigan's well-balanced team, led by the Hume twins, Bob and Ross, won its seventh Western Conference outdoor championship in the last decade, compiling 70 points to Illinois 58 1-10. Purdue was third with 31.

Twins In Dead Heat It was the end of an exhaustive day for the little negro pre-medical student. After spending the morning in a broiling sun qualifying for four events, he returned after a rest of only four hours to win the 100-yard dash in .09.7 and the 220 in .21.3. His broad jump mark of 22 feet 10 inches during the morning preliminaries stood up during the afternoon tests for his third victory.

Elroy Hirsch, Michigan's versatile athlete finished third in the broad jump after posting 22 feet 5 3-4 inches in the preliminaries before making a 150-mile trip to Bloomington, Ind., to pitch for the Wolverines' baseball team against Indiana.

Finishing fourth behind Purdue in the team totals was Ohio State with 17 1-10 points, followed by Northwestern with 14 17-20; Minnesota, 7 1-2; Indiana 4; Wisconsin 3 3-4; Iowa 3, and Chicago 17-20.

Bob and Ross Hume made a family affair of the mile run by interlocking their arms at the finish to break the tape in a dead heat at a slow 4:25.4—putting on the same show as they did to win the indoor title. Bob ran a total of 3 1-2 miles in the preliminaries before making a 150-mile trip to Bloomington, Ind., to pitch for the Wolverines' baseball team against Indiana.

The Sports Parade

By Ken Gunderman

Most athletic coaches and particularly high school coaches are very cautious about forecasting great things for their athletic teams and so when a coach puts himself on record with predictions of championships, it's news, mister. With that prelude, you may be interested in a short note and a news clipping from the Soo high school paper, submitted to this desk from a Negaunee sports fan who signs his note, "A Reader of Your Column."

The note: "The article that is enclosed with this letter was clipped out of the Soo high school paper. I was very much alive and present at the Soo-Negaunee game this season and I believe that is what sports writers call 'Sticking Your Neck Out' when a coach says what Mr. Ripley says in this article." The reference, of course, is to Coach Dave Ripley of the Soo Blue Devils and to the stunning upset of the Blue Devils in the district basketball tournament by the Negaunee high school team.

Excerpts from the clipping: "Our whole season, next year, as far as the athletic department is concerned, looks pretty bright." That is according to Coach Ripley, who made this statement recently. "The football season looks especially bright with 13 prospects already. The coach is looking forward to a good backfield and already has four or five players lined up.

"Our basketball team will also be a shining light and although they may not equal last season's scoring mark, the coach thinks they will go through the season undefeated.

"Our track team will be by no means slighted as all but two of the thinclads will be returning next season. With another season of practice, the track team should take the top honors of the Upper Peninsula."

The review of the Soo athletic prospects for 1944-45 by Coach Ripley may have been solely for local consumption, but they do stamp Ripley as the most courageous athletic coach in the peninsula, a man with unbounded confidence in his athletes. The Soo coach may have something in this philosophy, at that—a belief in the theory that by setting your goals high enough and striving earnestly to reach them, you will accomplish the most with what you have. The philosophy, of course, must be supported with an ability to take a little ribbing. Apparently Coach Ripley has that ability, too.

The viewpoint as expressed in the Soo high school paper by Coach Ripley is interesting because it is in such marked contrast to the generally accepted principle. Most coaches with big goals of athletic stars speak out for publication in a theme that makes you wonder how they'll ever get through the season without a steady string of unmerciful lacings. That, of course, is designed to throw the opposition off guard but it never does. Those boys watch each other too closely. It will be very interesting—and perhaps entertaining—to watch developments next season and see how Coach Ripley's technique works out in actual practice.

CUBS MAKE IT SEVEN IN ROW

Double In Ninth Brings In Run For 3-2 Win Over Boston

Boston, May 27. (AP)—The Chicago Cubs chalked up their seventh straight victory today with Bill Schuster's ninth inning double bringing in the run that gave them a 3 to 2 win over the Boston Braves.

It was the Cubs' fourth straight win over the Braves and the teams were tied two to two in the ninth. Don Johnson started the winning run off in the last inning with a single and was sacrificed to second by Bill Holm. After Henry Wyse grounded out, Schuster's double to right center brought Johnson home.

The other two Chicago runs came in the first inning on Bill Nicholson's homer after Ival Goodman doubled.

The Braves got two in the third on doubles by Max Macon and Tommy Holmes and a single by Elmer Nieman.

Score by innings:
Chicago --- 200 000 001—3 11 0
Boston --- 002 000 000—2 6 2
Wyse and Holm; Barrett and Hofferth.

DODGERS SHUT OUT

Brooklyn, May 27. (AP)—Cincinnati's Reds blanked the Brooklyn Dodgers, 2-0, today, behind the six-hit pitching of Ed Heusser, and pushed Brooklyn deeper into seventh place, only one half game ahead of the up-and-coming Chicago Cubs.

Curt Davis, veteran right-hander, moved along on even terms with Heusser until the eighth when the Reds scored on a single by Max Marshall and Gerald Walker's double.

The Reds' second tally came in the ninth when Eric Tipton singled, Eddie Miller sacrificed and Steve Mesner singled, scoring Tipton.

Score by innings:
Cincinnati --- 000 000 011—2 7 1
Brooklyn --- 000 000 000—0 6 3
Heusser and Mueller; Davis and Owen.

HOMERS ENLIVEN GAME

New York, May 27 (AP)—In a game enlivened by four home runs, the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the New York Giants in the opening contest of a four-game series, 6-4, before 8,582 paying customers, today.

George (Whitey) Kurowski hit two circuit clouts for the Cardinals, his second in the seventh inning with one on, accounting for the winning runs. Pepper Martin also hit a home run in the first inning.

Mel Ott hit the lone Giant home in the seventh inning, his sixth of the season, placing him in a tie for the lead with Howard Schultz of the Dodgers and Kurowski.

St. Louis --- 111 000 300—6 9 1
New York --- 000 111 100—4 12 2
Munger, Gumbert and W. Cooper; Melton, Polli, Adams and Mancuso.

METRO PASSES TESTS

Detroit, May 27. (AP)—Charles Metro, reserve outfielder of the Detroit Tigers, passed his pre-induction physical examination today but no date was set for his induction into the army. He said he would remain with the Tigers until called. Metro is 25 years old and had transferred his examination from Mayfield, Ky.

TENTH BRINGS TIGER VICTORY

Higgins Scores On An Infield Out To Nip Athletics, 2-1

BY WATSON SPOELSTRA
Detroit, May 27 (AP)—Hal Newhouse pitched the Detroit Tigers into the American League's fifth place today by cashing in on a five-hitter in the tenth inning when Pinky Higgins scored in an infield out to defeat the Philadelphia Athletics, 2 to 1.

Newhouse, gaining his sixth victory against three defeats, salvaged the final game of the series after Philadelphia had won three straight. The Tigers thus took their first home victory in seven games and second triumph in 14 starts at Briggs Stadium this season.

While the Tigers gathered 10 hits off lanky Russ Christopher, they had only an unearned run to show for the regulation nine innings. That came in the second on Edgar Busch's error, but the A's got that back in the third on singles by Irvin Hall and Ford Garrison, sandwiched by a sacrifice.

With one out in the tenth, Higgins, celebrating his 35th birthday, drew a pass and went to third on Jimmy Outlaw's single to center. On orders from Connie Mack, Christopher passed Chuck Hostetler intentionally, filling the bases, and bringing up Paul Richards.

Christopher fell behind on Richards but finally brought the count to three and two. On the next pitch Richards hit the ball sharply to shortstop where Hall decided to try for a double play. Coming into second base, Hostetler gave Busch some trouble on the pivot throw, and Richards, an exceedingly slow runner, got the decision by an eyelash at first. Meanwhile, Higgins had waited across the plate.

Red Sox Passed
By winning, the Tigers moved ahead of the Boston Red Sox into fifth. Frank Overmire and Ruffus Gentry will pitch tomorrow in a double-header with the Washington Senators.

Detroit left 13 men on bases while winning today. The club's only run before the tenth was a gift in the second. Hostetler opened with a single and went to second when Newhouse beat out a hunt with one out. Joe Hoover fanned, but Hostetler scored when Busch let Roger Cramer's roller trickle through into right field.

In the Philadelphia series, the Tigers got eight runs in 37 innings. They went scoreless in all but four of the 37 innings, making it crystal clear why the club isn't winning at home.

Newhouse got out of trouble in the second after two walks and a single filled the bases. After the A's scored in the third, however, Newhouse permitted only four to reach base, one advancing as far as second.

Inside pitches: The Tigers now stand even in extra inning decisions, winning two and losing two. The Tigers haven't had an extra base hit in three games, and Rudy York has gone hitless in his last 11 times at bat. It was Christopher's fourth defeat against one victory, scored over Detroit last week at Philadelphia Athletics 001 000 000—1 5 2.

Christopher and Hayes; Newhouse and Richards.

YANKS FALL 4-3

Chicago, May 27 (AP)—The Chicago White Sox gained an even break in their curtailed two-game series by defeating the New York Yankees 4-3, today, before 4,561 spectators.

Bill Dietrich became the first pitcher to conquer the Yankees twice this season, allowing them eight scattered hits. The outcome snapped a four game winning streak of the New Yorkers and ended a five game losing streak for the White Sox.

Rookie Walter Dubiel went the whole way for the Yankees and suffered his second defeat, compared with three victories.

Dubiel and Hemsle; Dietrich and Tresh.

BACK IN SECOND PLACE

St. Louis, May 27 (AP)—The St. Louis Browns moved back to second place today by defeating the Boston Red Sox 4 to 2 behind the four-hit pitching of Jack Jakucki.

The Red Sox scored once in the first inning when George Metkovich opened the game with a triple and crossed the plate on an infield out, and picked up another counter in the second on a walk, stolen base and an error.

The Browns kept pace with the visitors in the first two frames, went ahead with a single run in the third, and added another in the seventh for safety.

Boston --- 11000 000—2 3 0
St. Louis --- 111 000 10x—4 7 2
Partenheimer, Woods, Terry and Wagner; Jakucki and Hayworth.

SINGLE BREAKS TIE

Cleveland, May 27 (AP)—With the bases filled, Jeff Heath smacked out a 12th inning single today to shatter a 4-all deadlock and give the Indians a 4 to 4 decision over Washington.

Fireworks On Football Rules To Start Monday

BY HAROLD CLAASSEN

New York, May 27 (AP)—There was so little football talk in the lobby of the hotel where the National Gridiron Coach's Association starts its first war-time study of the rules tomorrow that a quarterback rehearsing signals would have been mistaken for a tax expert.

The two-day session gets under way tomorrow with a report on football in various sectors. Most of the fireworks, however, is reserved for Monday when the mentors survey the playing code.

Although the National Collegiate Association rules group, of which Lt. Col. William Bingham of Harvard is chairman, has decreed there will be no changes for the duration of the war, there has been agitation for revisions.

"Generally speaking," said Lou Little of Columbia today, "There are five items the coaches would like to have the rules committee to consider."

"First, is the out of bounds kickoff, then the forward pass behind the line of scrimmage, permission to run a fumbled ball, a less severe penalty of a forward lateral pass if the lateral is also tossed forward and elimination of the clock-stopping for substitutions."

Big Ten coaches met at Chicago last Thursday and reached a gentlemen's agreement to do away with the out-of-bounds kickoffs but even that wasn't being discussed by early arrivals. Reports were that the coaches, meeting here at the call of their president, Lt. Cmdr. Matty Bell of the Georgia Pre-Flight school, might do likewise.

The coaches have no power to change the code, being only able to suggest changes to the NCAA rules committee. The latter organization, however, lists four coaches among its members and three of them—Fritz Crisler of Michigan, Bill Alexander of Georgia Tech and Dana Bible of Texas—are expected here. A. A. Stag of the College of Pacific, is not coming East.

Approximately 40 mentors, primarily officers and chairmen of various committee, will attend.

COMPETITION IN HURDLES KEEN

Close Contests Likely Also In Pole Vault And 100 Dash

The competition in the individual events, the 200 yard low hurdles, the pole vault, and the 100 yard dash, in the U. P. Relays here Tuesday looms as one of the main features of the track classic.

In the low hurdles no less than seven entries are conceded an even chance to take the cup and the winning performances of each in past meets indicate a spread of only three-tenths of one second in the 200 yard race.

Bob Crepeau, Escanaba, and McKindles, L'Anse, each has run the distance in 24.9. Grouped at 25 seconds are MacEachern, Hermansville, Treado, Ironwood, and Valko, of St. Ambrose. Sandell, of Ironwood, has a 25.1 performance and Mongiat, of Negaunee, has covered the distance in 25.2.

Others who are apt to spring a surprise are Peterson, Escanaba; McDonald, St. Ambrose; and Ranta, Munising.

An equally brisk contest is anticipated in the pole vault, with Minkerick of Hermansville as the favorite. He has a record of 11 feet, 6 inches, followed by Crebo, Escanaba, 11 feet, 3 inches; Osterman, Baraga, 11 feet; Raymond, Munising 10 feet, 9 inches; and Kuchenberg Escanaba 10 feet, 9 inches.

Curley of Manistique is the favorite in the relays century, being undefeated in competition thus far this season. His best performance in the 100 is 10.6, with Hemes, Escanaba and Moderson, Ironwood close behind with 10.7.

Treado and Sandell, both of Ironwood, have been clocked in 10.8 and Baxter, Munising and Dufresne, Escanaba, have covered the distance in 10.9. Curley broke the 220 yard record at Houghton last week, running the furlong in 23.3.

Highland Plans Flag Tournament

There will be no twilight matches at the Highland golf club Tuesday but the Memorial Day holiday program will feature a flag tournament for men and women, both morning and afternoon.

Wolff, Le Febvre, Carrasouell and Ferrell; Kleins, Heving, Smith and Rosar, Susce.

HOOSIERS DROP 2 TO MICHIGAN

Hirsch Pitches 4-Hitter After Taking Part In Track Competition

Bloomington, Ind., May 27 (AP)—Elroy (Crazy Legs) Hirsch, returning just before game time from Champaign, Ill., where he placed third in the broad jump of the Big Ten track meet, pitched a four-hitter today as Michigan beat Indiana in both ends of a baseball double-header, 14 to 3 and 12 to 1.

With Michigan gathering 15 hits in each game for its biggest batting attack of the season, it was easy for Hirsch and Lefty Bliss Bowman to maintain their undefeated pace. The twin victory gave Michigan a 6-0 record as Big Ten leader with two games remaining.

Hirsch, who arose at 5 a. m. today to make the 250 mile round trip to the track meet, missed a shutout in the nightcap when the Hoosiers scored in the sixth. He contributed a triple to the attack and scored a run.

In the opener, Bowman pitched a five-hitter and was backed by three homers, two by Don Lund and one by Elmer Swanson. The first game was a seven inning affair in which Michigan scored in each frame but the seventh.

The Wolverine attack in the opener was centered on Indiana's captain, Kermit Wahl, who went the distance. Southpaw Gene Seifert was the victim in the nightcap.

Michigan ends its conference season June 9 and 10 at home against Purdue. The Wolverines now lead idle Minnesota by a game and a half.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Rueben C. Young of Rapid River, Michigan, who passed away five years ago on May 29, 1939.

Remembrance is a golden chain. That binds us 'till we meet again; To have to live and then to part. Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart. The years may wipe out many things, But this they never can forget. The memory of those happy days, When we were all together.

Sadly missed by:

HIS LOVING WIFE EDNA AND HIS SONS AND DAUGHTERS.

SPEAKING OF THE QUINTS--

Famous Dionne Children Are Now Ten Years Old

BY A. E. FULFORD
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Callander, Ont., (AP)—The Dionne quintuplets are ten years old today, and it's time to debunk some stories about them that have sprung up during the decade.

One of these widely believed untruths is that the quintuplets are not bright—or that one of them, Marie, is backward.

This Canadian Press Correspondent, who first knew them when they were three months old, visited them with their father and their teachers. He learned that while they are not prodigies, they are as intelligent as normal children of their age and perhaps a little more so.

None is brighter in everything than the others. Yvonne may be a wizard at arithmetic one month, but Cecile or Emilie will beat her later. Marie may be tops in social studies in one test, but Anette will overhaul her the next time.

Marie Was Smallest
Marie is the smallest, but—she is not the least intelligent. It is evident the others still regard her as the baby of their group, and give her a little more attention than she gives them.

Another story is that the quintuplets can't speak English and are forbidden to learn. On the contrary, they have daily English lessons—although most of their school work is done in their native French—and they speak English very well for little French-Canadian girls. They sing in English with scarcely the trace of an accent.

It has been reported that the quintuplets' earning power has diminished. Some of that earning power was diverted to selling war bonds, but the little girls are still doing nicely. They have contracts that bring them $25,000 to $30,000 a year plus a million dollar reserve that won't be touched until they are grown.

Weather Is Calculated Weapon In World War

The date of the invasion of Europe is up to the weather man.

From London comes the word that the crossing to Europe probably will be timed by the likelihood of favorable weather as worked out by the director of meteorology at the British Air Ministry and his associate experts.

Never before has weather been so thoroughly used as a weapon, says the National Geographic Society. Some bomber flights are timed to be hidden by cloud banks. Blitzkriegs are planned to start when skies are fair and ground is dry. Planes are flown across oceans on routes where tail winds will give the planes the biggest boost.

Climate Is Weather
This weapon of weather is forged chiefly by the movement and behavior of the restless, churning layer of air that thinly blankets the spinning earth. The ever-flowing stream of air brings heat from the Tropics, cold from the Arctic, rain and snow from moisture evaporated from the oceans, gales, and calms. Climate is just "average weather" over a long period.

The armed services of the United States are using the knowledge of weather and climate to Dionne, during our visit dispelled the rumors of disagreement between himself and the late Dr. Allan Roy DaFoe. Mr. Dionne expressed real gratitude to Dr. DaFoe and his brother, Dr. W. A. DaFoe, of Toronto, who aided in consultation during the quintuplets' early years.

For the first time since the quintuplets' birth in a four-room farmhouse across the road from their present $50,000 twenty-room home, Mr. and Mrs. Dionne fully approve of the arrangements under which the children are brought up.

The quintuplets no longer are wards of the state, except in the handling of their finances. All the Dionnes are together in a house that is the largest and most tastefully furnished in Northern Ontario. There's a dining room table long enough to seat the whole family of 14. Three nuns teach the children grammar school essentials and music—and the quintuplets are so eager for their music lesson they queue-up for their turn at the piano.

Not too eager, not too shy, they are beautifully behaved and lack self-consciousness except when they are the center of attention. When visiting is over and it is indicated they can resume their play they turn back to their games with the same absorption of other children.

fight a war all over the earth. By pooling the reports of regional weather officers scattered over the world it is possible for the first time to know what the weather is like everywhere—even in enemy territory.

Weather reports for the Army are issued by the Air Forces. Observations are made for air and ground operations. A world-wide weather map is drawn at least once every day. Usually, four maps are prepared daily.

The weather won't stay put, has to be watched all the time. A howling blizzard over Hudson Bay may in a few days shut off bomber flights to England, and scatter a convoy over the North Atlantic. It is the forecaster's job to find out where the weather, which is "acting up" in one place, will be tomorrow—or next week.

In the temperate zones weather travels from west to east. That means that today's weather in Siberia may be tomorrow's weather over Japan. A storm now lashing the North Atlantic will provide cloud cover for Allied bombers over Europe a few days later.

Secrets Kept With Codes
The weather tells its secrets to military forecasters in code. From the chatter of the teletypes they learn that "Swamps in western Russia are beginning to freeze"—"Prolonged dry spell in northern France is continuing"—"A tropical storm is moving toward the Solomon Islands."

These scrappy bits of weather news make big war news. When swamps freeze tanks and troops can move more freely. A windy dry spell is the best time to drop incendiary bombs. Under cover of a tropical storm Japan planes may raid the Solomons.

Climate has become just as important as weather. What's the best time of year to bomb Japan? Card index files give the answer. Japan's west coast, toward China, has much cloudy weather in winter; the east coast, where industries are concentrated, is mostly clear. In summer the conditions are reversed.

The weather man makes much of soil. Fine, sandy soil dries out fast after a hard rain. Tanks and heavy guns can be moved in a few hours without danger of bogging down. Sticky, clayey soil stays mucky for days.

Rain is a separate hazard. When it rains in northern France how hard does it rain? Army engineers must know. If rains are heavy streams will rise. Fords will become impassable, more bridges will be needed.

Keyed to Local Conditions
Local operations must be keyed to local weather and climatic conditions. The bombing of dams in western Germany took place in May because release of the water then meant greater damage to the industrial areas.

When a flight of bombers starts across the Atlantic the officers are provided with a vertical cross section diagram of the weather along their route, reaching from the surface up to 25,000 feet. The route is divided into segments. For each one the expected weather is noted, such as broken clouds; overcast, squally; showers; ice forming.

This information is compiled in part from reports received from planes after they have reached their destinations. Reports are regularly received from the British Isles, Iceland, Greenland, Spain, Portugal and Bermuda.

No bomber leaves the ground until the weather officer of the base has assured the flight personnel that conditions are favorable for the mission. So important are clouds that Allied and Axis air forces have issued handbooks telling how to use clouds as ambush and haven.

Not Made in Germany
Because the weather moves eastward the Germans have to guess what sort is coming to them from the Atlantic. That is why they risked establishing secret weather stations in Greenland and Spitzbergen. Some parts of United States forecasts are secret to prevent the Germans from knowing what to expect.

The Japs have the edge in the Pacific. Their weather heads out way. The Jap aircraft carriers that attacked Pearl Harbor sneaked in under the clouds of an eastward moving storm.

The same weather may be friend and foe. The winter weather that freezes rivers and swamps making troop movements possible will require special lubricants for trucks and tanks, and shelter for troops. Rain bogs down unpaved landing fields, but improves the water supply in an arid country. Snow is a big help to aerial observation and photography, but makes it easier for enemy planes to spot the tracks of trucks, tanks, and guns on the ground.

Cloudy weather not only screens bombing raids and hampers anti-aircraft fire, but also makes formation flying difficult and hides the target. Fog favors surprise attacks and screens targets on the ground. At the same time it hampers plane landings and takeoffs, restricts naval patrols and submarine activity.

Weather is an old hand at shaping history. A storm helped destroy the Spanish Armada and saved England from invasion in 1588. The rain-soaked field of Waterloo delayed the placing of the French artillery, gave Wellington's ally Blucher time to bring up his troops and turn the tide of battle against Napoleon.

Japanese soldier wear bellybands or Senninburi—belts of a thousand stitches, each sewn by a different person, which supposedly make them invulnerable.

Seventy per cent of Canada's munitions production is allocated to other United Nations.

McMillan

Death Claims Fred Brown
McMillan—Death claimed one of McMillan's esteemed citizens Friday May 19 when Fred Brown Sr., 75 passed away suddenly at his home here following an acute heart attack. Mr. Brown had been in poor health for the past several months but his condition was not considered serious. Friday morning he was seized with a heart attack and passed away shortly after. Mrs. Brown preceded her husband in death, August 1943. Mr. Brown was born in Canada but had been in this country since childhood and a resident of McMillan for the past 41 years.

He is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Doris Murgrave and Mrs. Mazie Meister of Big Rapids, Mrs. Minola McInnis and Mrs. Evelyn Taylor of McMillan, five sons, Pfc.
